Reds Fight Back To End Lull

After Retreat Of Two Days Use Artillery To Force Back Platoon

TOKYO, Sunday, April 8—(AP)—The Chinese Reds suddenly turned and fought advancing Americans north of the 38th parallel on the Korean central front today after two days of retreat.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported from the front that the Reds used artillery, mortars and machine guns to hurl back an attacking American platoon from a ridge overlooking the Pukhan river north of Chunchon.

The correspondent said 17 units of one American division were engaged in that area.

It was the first major opposition the allies had met since Wednesday when they drove across the 38th parallel, old political mountdary of North and South Korea.

For the past two days the Chinese had unexpectedly broken off almost all contact and retreated steadily in a broad area four to eight miles inside North Korea.

This was still the case in the west, latest dispatches reporting that only allied patrols were able to keep up with the retiring enemy.

Whether the sudden stiffening in the center marked a general ending of the Red fallback was not apparent.

However, it was believed the U. S. Eighth Army forces had still some distance to go before striking the main Chinese line. This was believed to be along the railroad between Chorwon and Kumhwa, 20 miles inside North Korea.

Predict Offensive

There have been many predications that north of that line the Chinese were massing fresh forces for a spring offensive that would be their heaviest effort yet in Korea. The aggressive Eighth Army drive is aimed at throwing this anticipated Red offensive out of gear before-hand.

Coupled with this aim, American B-29s Saturday heavily bombed the Yalu river bridges from Manchuria into Korea and 250 British Marines made a commando raid near Songjin, Red east coast port 120 miles south of Manchuria.

The British, covered by American carrier planes and naval guns, demolished a section of the mainline coastal railway eight miles south of Songjin.

The B-29 bombers were protected by 30 F-86 Sabre jet fighters while 50 F-84 Thunderjets fought a swirling series of dogfights with 40 Russian,made MIG jet planes that attempted to intervene.

The Sabres did not get into the battle, but the Thunderjet pilots estimated they damaged two MIGS before the Reds fled back to Manchuria, where allied planes are forbidden to pursue. No American planes were hit.

Earlier Saturday two unarmed F-80 jet photo planes escaped when they were jumped by 18 MIGS over northwest Korea.

Maybank Prepared To Fight Program To Freeze Parity

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—Senator Maybank (D-SC) declared tonight he will fight any administration move to freeze farm parity as a method of curbing food prices.

He made the statement under circumstances which appeared to herald a farm bloc drive in Congress to prevent any tempering with the parity program.

Maybank said farmers' income shrunk $5,000,000,000 since 1948, and added:

"There has been an outrageous campaign waged to deceive and fool the people of the United States, to have them believe that parity prices are largely responsible for inflation."

Government stabilization officials reportedly are considering such a parity freeze move as Maybank opposed. It would require congressional approval of new legislation.

Plaque To The Memory Of Scott Joplin

At exactly the same moment an exact copy of the plaque will be presented Mrs. Scott Joplin in a similar ceremony to take place in New York City.

Joplin was a resident of Sedalia in the early days of the "rag-time" era, He, with a handful of faithful followers, made the forerunner of modern-day jazz popular—and made Sedalia a mecca for the followers of this "new music". The "Maple Leaf Rag", a Joplin composition, is still regarded as one of the finest examples of "rag-time."

Complete arrangements for the local ceremony are not final. The Choral club, under the direction of Abe Rosenthal and accompanied by Miss Lillian Fox, will present several numbers, with the presentation of the plaque to come about half-way through the program.

Rap At Kem From Young Democrats

Walkout By Some Delegates Over Dispute On Rules

ST. LOUIS, April 7—(AP)—The Young Democrats of Missouri called today for an end to segregation in public schools.

The call came in a resolution passed near the end of the group's two-day convention.

"It is especially incongruous that colored children should be discriminated against at a time when white and colored Americans are fighting and dying side by side in the defense of Democracy," the resolution stated.

The delegates also reaffirmed their stand of a year ago that 18-year-olds should be allowed to vote.

Also the convention went on record as favoring outright repeal of the state's King-Thompson utility anti-strike law. The law has been ruled invalid by Attorney General J. E. Taylor.

In a keynote address Rep.Phil J. Welch (D-Mo) of St. Joseph called Republican Senator James P. Kem "the greatest obstructionist and destructionist to real Democratic government" in the U. S. Senate.

"Getting rid of James Kem as a Missouri Senator is not a task for Democrats alone," Congressman Welch told the delegates.

"Thinking Republicans and thinking independents will join with us. The tide already has started. I would not be surprised if Kem were defeated for renomination in the primary in August, 1952, by a member of his own party.

"If the Republicans do that, they will be adding stature to their own party. They will be doing a favor to all of the people of the United States."

Johnson Reelected

John S. Johnson of Ellington, Mo., was re-elected president of the state club.

Others elected were Bert Semmer, New Madrid, national committeeman; Madge Cohen, Clinton, vice president; John J. Cole, St. Louis, treasurer; and William Mueller, Independence, secretary.

The Kansas City delegation and parts of the delegations from Cole, Moniteau, Chariton and Clay counties walked out of the afternoon session in a dispute over parliamentary rules.

In response to a request from the floor Tom Cowdrey, permanent chairman of the convention, ruled that the resolutions were passed in the morning sessions when a quorum was not present.

A motion to suspend the rules then was passed by the delegates. The Kansas City group led the walkout because the chairman refused to call for another vote on the resolutions. Later a second vote on the resolutions was taken and all were passed.

MacArthur — Asset Or Liability?

MacArthur's Authority Poses Big Question In Washington

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, straining at the United Nations leash in Korea, stirred up a growing controversy in the nation's capital today.

On one side, there were demands to "take the wraps off" MacArthur and give him more power to carry the war to the Chinese Communists. On the other, there was a charge that the general has become too big for his boots and may soon become a liability.

The controversy flared in and out of Congress against the background of an expected new Chinese Red offensive and the possibility—only hinted at—that the Russians might take a direct hand in the conflict.

Speculation about this possibility stemmed from last Wednesday's statement by House Speaker Rayburn (D-Texas) that Communist forces massing in Manchuria included non-Chinese troops. Rayburn said there is a "terrible danger" of World War III.

Taft Would Use Chiang's Army

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told a newsman today that Chinese Nationalists should be given American arms to invade the Chinese mainland and "take the pressure off our boys fighting in Korea."

MacArthur himself indicated he favored this course in a letter read in the House by Republican Floor Leader Martin of Massachusetts last Friday.

On the other side of the fence, Senator Kerr (D-Okla) lit into "MacArthur the magnificent," as he called the general, and charged in a blistering statement that "his one-man act is wearing the patience of the rest of the team mighty thin."

"The time may be nearer than we think," Kerr said, "When the overall cost of keeping MacArthur as the theater commander will be greater than the value of his 'position' with the Asiatics.

"Sometimes I fear that parts of what MacArthur is doing could get us deeper into war instead of successfully ending the one we are already in."

MacArthur Adds Fuel To Flame

From Tokyo, MacArthur added fuel to the flames by saying the release of 120,000 South Korean troops from the United Nations force involved "political decisions beyond my authority."

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) called this to the attention of Secretary of State Acheson. Ferguson wrote the secretary that, all told, a miltiary reserve of 500,000 South Koreans is denied to MacArthur, and said further:

"I simply do not think it sits well with the American public to think that we are incurring more and more casualties in Korea and calling up more and more men for military service, when employable manpower from the very country we are fighting for is not being used."

The State Department, like military leaders and the White House, declined comment.

Death To 22 In DC-3 Crash

Huge Plane Down In Mountains 23 Miles From Santa Barbara

By JACK QUIGG

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. April 7— (AP) —Twenty-two persons, many of them horribly burned and mangled beyond recognition, died in the crash of a Southwest Airways plane last night.

Rescue teams, hacking and crawling through dense mountain growth familiar only to deer and mountain lions, reached the wreckage today.

Tom Kleveland, reporter-photographer for the Santa Barbara News-Press, was one of the first to reach the scene—about 23 miles northwest of here in primitive coastal range country.

"It was a scene of almost unbelievable destruction," said Kleveland.

Outside of a motor and a wing, the wreckage was little more than a pathway of smouldering grey ash—punctuated gruesomely with several of the victims' heads burned to the skulls.

Four Aboard Colonels

Many of the dead were servicemen. Four of them were colonels and one of them a private who was en route to a brilliant socialite wedding in Beverly Hills—his own.

Many were still fastened to their seats with safety belts. The plane became lost in a fog on a flight that normally takes only 20 minutes from Santa Maria to Santa Barbara—Hardly enough time to unfasten the safety belts from takeoff to landing.

Kleveland said the expressions on most faces were calm:

"I saw none of horror. I believe they all died a quick and merciful death."

He said the plane, a DC-3, scattered a wide path of brush bounced in the air over a little rocky ridge and came to rest about 1,000 feet from where it first pancaked onto the mountain slope.

Air Force Capt. John Aidem, in charge of rescue operations, said the bodies were scattered over a wide area in Pubio canyon, just west of a 4,000-foot mountain peak.

Cutting Road Through

Bulldozers started hacking a road through the dense growth to bring the bodies here for identification.

Sheriff's parties and Navy Seabees had to hack their way through tangled thicket 10 feet high. Chief Sheriff's Deputy R. B. Romeo said it might be necessary to level a clearing near the crash scene and fly out the bodies by helicopter.

He said the rocky, brush-covered terrain is so primitive that litter bearers would find it almost impenetrable.

It killed a 21-year-old Army private, John Lawrence McNeil, whose church wedding today to Betty Lou Pack, 19, was to have been a social event in fashionoble Beverly Hills. McNeil was the son of Lawrence G. McNeil, wealthy contractor and chairman of the board of Bonanza Airlines of Nevada.

Another casualty was Pvt. Richard Myers, 19. His father, Los Angeles radio evangelist Paul Myers, opened his broadcast today with a plea to listeners to pray for the boy's safety. Soon after came word that there were no survivors.

Trip For Orchid

A well-known author and California newspaperman, and a woman on her way to accept an award for a prize orchid were among the others killed.

Norton Clapp, a Seattle shipping executive, was the first of the relatives to arrive at search headquarters here. He told reporters how his wife and her daughter by a previous marriage boarded the plane because of an orchid.

She had been notified only yesterday that her orchid had won the sweepstakes prize in the annual Santa Barbara Orchid show. She was enroute to the show.

Also aboard was John Burgan, 38, California newspaperman and novelist. He was assistant editor of the Ventura Star-Free Press and had written several books and magazine fictions.

Ironically a two-year-old boy became an indirect casualty of the crash. He was killed in a three car collision in Los Angeles involving two air force captains driving north to take part in the air search.

Among those listed as aboard the plane were:

Lt. Col. J. H. Byrd of G-3 section, Fort Monroe; Home, Oklahoma City.

Navy Ensign Heiman, of Navy School of Indoctrination, Del Monte, of 7304 Forsythe, University City, Mo.

Asked Prayers For Son Killed

Mrs. Comer Retires As Church Organist After 43 Years

It was 43 years ago that Mrs J. J. Comer, 605 South Lafayette started as organist in the Catholic churches of Sedalia and now, after all those years of faithful service, she is retiring. It isn't that she wants to retire, but an attack of influenza has left her in a weakened condition and her doctor has advised it. And so Saturday morning as she played the nuptial music for a wedding she closed her career as a church organist.

Mrs. Comer was formerly Amelia Lorsbach and was the only one of a family of eight children, six girls and two boys, who inherited their mother's golden gift of music. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lorsbach, Amelia started playing long before she was big enough to climb on the piano stool by herself and she never tired of hearing her mother play. Mrs. Lorsbach, who had studied music, loved it, too, and would sit and play for hours, even in the dark.

Mastered "After the Ball"

At an early age Amelia would go home from where she had heard a band or other music and play the pieces she had heard. It was just a natural and the first piece that the tiny fingers on both hands mastered was "After the Ball."

Only two of her sisters could play at all but they didn't care much about it. It was Amelia who never had to be told to practice, in fact, it was almost too much the other way to be appreciated by the family, they couldn't get her away from the piano long enough to do her share of the work.

In 1902 when she entered the eighth grade at school she began taking piano lessons from the Sisters of the Precious Blood and took a year and a half. Later, for nine months, she studied under Prof. Henry W. Steiniger. It was the year she started taking the music lessons that her mother died.

Knew Musical Ability

In 1905 the organist at the Sacred Heart church decided to quit after eight years as organist. Father S. J. Neiberg didn't have anybody to replace Miss Rast and knowing the musical ability of Amelia Lorsbach he went to her father and asked if she could become the church organist.

"But Amelia is just a little girl. She is too young," said the father and wouldn't hear to it.

Father Neiberg tried to find somebody else to be organist and when he couldn't he went again to Amelia's father.

"Oh, please let me, father" begged the little girl, "I would so love to do it."

The father realizing that it was a big responsibility and that there would be many times she would have to play when the other young people would be going places and having fun, hesitated and tried to explain what it would mean to Amelia. But Amelia didn't care. Her first love was music and she didn't care what she had to give up just as long as she could play the church organ.

At last her father reluctantly consented, she was given a month of lessons on the organ and went to the home of Josie Rast frequently where together they would go over music and play. She practiced twice a week at the church and did her job well as organist. She started under two wonderful music directors at the church, the first, L. E. Friemel and the second William Katzer.

She played at 8:00 o'clock mass and 10:00 o'clock mass each Sunday morning and again for evening service. During school, too, she played for the children on Sunday afternoon and she never tired. She was never sorry that she took the job of church organist, and didn't mind in the least missing the good times with the other young people. She walked to the church from her home over on Cooper street for each service.

During the years Mrs. Comer has played for many weddings and funerals for the Sedalia parish and in small parishes near by for special occasions, in addition to the usual Sunday masses, devotional services and school activities.

Plays When Priests Ordained

Some of the highlights of her career were playing the first masses for four newly ordained priests, Rev. Charles Condon, Rev. William Condon, Rev. Arnold Weller and the late Msgr. William Quinn and for the silver anniversary of the ordaination of Rev. Christian Daniels, who was a newly ordained priest when he came to Sacred Heart parish as assistant to Father Neiberg.

The one thing she is proudest of, however, was to be chosen to play the mass when the Eucharistic Congress was held at Convention hall.

From September 1905 until December 1937 Mrs. Comer was organist at Sacred Heart church. In the meantime she had married and became a member of the St. Patrick's parish, but even after her marriage she was organist in the Sacred Heart church. For two years she played the requiem masses sung by the children's choir of the St. Patrick's church where she has since served.

Composed Sacred Numbers

In addition Mrs. Comer has also composed two religious numbers which will not be played again because they have never been put on paper. She wrote the colorful music for the Sacred Heart high school. Alma Mater song.

Two of Mrs. Comer's sisters became nuns. Sister Ewalda, in the Precious Blood, who died several years go and Sister Hilda who is a teacher of accounting at Fontbonne college, St. Louis.

Red Cross Finds Korea GIs 'Letter Writing-est' Ever

Writing Home: For Sgt. Elmer Williams of Columbia, S.C., and his buddies in Korea, 1,400,000 pieces of notepaper a month.

By NEA Service

WITH THE AMERICAN EIGHTH ARMY IN KOREA—(NEA)—This army is one of the "letter writing-est" ever to take the field, according to Red Cross field workers in Korea.

In January alone, the homewriting lads got away with approximately 1,400,000 American Red Cross noteheads and 900,000 envelopes. An additional 1,600,000 noteheads and a million envelopes went to hospitalized men in the same period.

But the boys could use four times as much writing material in their writing spree.

The big headache is lack of transportation as the field workers try to keep up with the demands of the fighting GIs and other UN military personnel.

The job is to get the writing equipment up front where GIs use rifle butts and foxhole rocks for writing tables. Red Cross field directors and assistants scrounge vehicles, load up and take off for advanced positions where the material is passed out. Since a jeep will hold only so much, a lot of GIs don't get paper.

Soldiers are great for precedent; and since the Red Cross is traditionally linked in their minds with items necessary for their comfort, other UN soldiers turn expectantly to the organization.

Hundreds of thousand of comfort articles are shipped to Korea and handed out to the troops, such as soap, towels, shaving cream, razors, handcloths, mirrors, hair and toothbrushes, toothpaste, combs, books, playing cards and kit bags.

During 1950 more than 6,000,000 noteheads and 3,000,000 envelopes were given to hospitalized men alone. To replenish the supply the Red Cross has shipped 10,000,000 noteheads and 5,000,000 envelopes to the Far East since July. Additional millions are on the way.

The regular meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Ray Hudson, with 15 members and three visitors present. Several games were played lead by Mrs. Kermit Stults, game and song leader.

The next meeting will be held May 8th at the home of Mrs. Kermit Stults.

Korea War Not Funny But Cannot Dampen GI's Humor

By Tom Stone

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, April 7—(AP)—The American GI may be 10,000 miles away from home fighting for something he doesn't understand against an enemy he hates—but he always manages to come with a wisecrack or a smile.

Take the time a young recruit quipped:

"That enemy machine gun last night didn't make me nervous—I just smoked a pack of cigarettes real quick and went back to sleep."

Or the time somebody tried to pull a fast one on the switchboard operator at a frontline command post.

"Quick," he said excitedly, "give me the underwater mess kit repair regiment."

The cool headed kid at the switchboard replied in a voice just as serious: "which do you want, sir, the 71st or the 72nd?"

Then there was the time the commanding general of the division came out to the regiment to present several Silver Stars, some Bronze Stars and other medals.

A Tennessee corporal watching the presentations said with a grin:

"Next thing you know they'll givin' out a K. P. ribbon with an oatmeal cluster."

An army dentist with a sense of humor just as sharp as his waxed mustache observed: "Yes sir, the North Koreans are communists all right—they are the comonest in the world."

On a bulletin board in the operations tent of a division air section was a notice painted at the bottom of the flight schedule:

"All flights to Seattle, Denver, Lawton, Mobile and Boston temporarily suspended."

Or you'll ask a GI where he is from:

"Able company, first battallion."

"No, no. Where are you from in the states?"

"Oh, I'm from Chicago."

What's the street address?"

"Well, I don't exactly live in Chicago. I live in Bloomville, 30 miles away."

What's your street address in Bloomville?"

"Well, I don't exactly live in Bloomville. I live just outside of town. Rural route one."

Oor you might pick a GI and ask him how long he's been in Korea.

"Nobody'll tell me," he'll say, sadly surpressing a smile.

Report From Korea
Our boys over in Korea like to write home. To fulfill this need, the Red Cross has supplied during the last six months 5,673,000 sheets of notepaper, and 2,101,000 envelopes to our troops. This sounds a lot more simple than is really the case. Our staff in Korea has reported great difficulty in transportation, and this has resulted in a certain amount of delay in the distribution of comfort items, the above mentioned among them. Some supplies may be purchased within the theater of operations itself. For example, local purchases for November and December totaled $101,768.32. Supplies for Korea proper are handled through a subwarehouse in Pusan . . . In November and December, 83 Red Cross staff workers arrived in the FETO, making the staff total 343 workers as of December 31. More staff is needed, particularly in Korea . . . During World War II four Red Cross field men were assigned to a division. In this war, five are necessary, in some cases six . . . At the end of 1950, Red Cross had 13 field offices, and four hospital staffs in Korea, including divisional units; 29 field offices and 21 hospital staffs in Japan; 11 field offices and four hospital staffs in Guam, Okinawa and the Philippines . . . Been wondering what the Red Cross does with its money? Here is your answer, and that's only a part of it. We'll give you more details as time goes on. In Korea, as always, the Red Cross is very much "at his side."

Bradley Pulls No Punches in War Review

NEW YORK, April 6—(AP)—The memoirs of generals and statesmen even when published after death, are often more noteworthy for what is left out than for what is told.

They would rather dwell upon their victories than upon the clash of personalities behind those triumphs. And thus later generations learn only what the famous men did, not what they thought. They learn what happened —but not what went on.

General of the Army Omar Nelson Bradley is an exception to the rule. The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, writing at the peak of his career, has pulled no punches in giving his own views of the Second World War.

In "The War America Fought," the first installment of which is published in the current Life magazine, Bradley gives a painfully honest personal evaluation of the allied armies and leaders in the European conflict.

His picture of Gen. George S. Patton is one of the frankest and fairest ever given of the man known to his troops as "Old Blood and Guts."

Bradley had served under Patton in Tunisia and Sicily. He admired Patton's ability to win ground but resented his "vulgarity" and felt he hadn't "learned how to command himself."

When Bradley was later named to head American ground forces in Europe, he wished at the time that Patton hadn't been named to command one of the armies under him. He felt "Georgie" would resent the reversal in roles.

"To this day," he writes, "I am chagrined to recall how uncharitably I first responded to Patton's assignment. For when George joined my command he came eagerly and as a friend without pique, rancor or grievance. My year's association with him in Europe remains one of the brightest remembrances of my military career."

Discipline Better

Bradley criticizes America army intelligence, says it was inferior to British intelligence, but expressed belief that American field commanders obeyed orders from higher headquarters with better discipline than did British field leaders.

A self-admitted "Yankee partisan" in several of the disputes between British and American commanders, the general thought Eisenhower sometimes "too eager to appease the British . . ."

He had no personal fondness for Field Marshal Montgomery but welcomed his selection to lead British troops into Normandy.

"Nothing becomes a general more than success in battle, and Montgomery wore success with such chipper faith . . . that he was cherished by a British people wearied of valorous setbacks."

Bradley reserves his highest praise for Field Marshal Alexander as "the outstanding general's general of the European war," one with the "reasonableness, patience and modesty of a great soldier."

Among the top divisional commanders he names Maj. Gen. Ernie ("Old Gravel Voice") Harmon for his "rare combination of sound tactical judgment and boldness that together make a great commander." Harmon led the First Armored division in Tunisia and Italy, the Second Armored division in western Europe. He is now retired.

Bradley picks as perhaps his finest army commander the one least known to the public — Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, a faultless technician who had no gift for self-dramatization.

"Of all my army commanders he required the least supervision," Bradley writes. "Hodges claim to greatness as a commander will endure in the achievements of his First army. It was the first army to cross the German border, the first to cross the Rhine, the first to close to the Elbe and join hands with the Russians. En route it ticketed more prisoners than any other American army. It also buried more American dead in the wake of its long advances."

Some of the judgments given by Bradley may stir some tempests of dissent, notably his views on Anglo-American military controversies. But he gives them calmly and without malice and historians will be grateful for his outspoken candor.

Elephants have life spans approximately equal to those of humans. They seldom live more than 75 years.

Kisses Way to Jail

HAMBURG, Germany — (AP) — A police official was sentenced to four weeks imprisonment here because "kissing does not belong to the sphere of duty of a policeman." The official had interviewed a housemaid on the suspicious actions of one of the borders. When the interview was finished he threw her on the couch and kissed her.

"I had closed my notebook and so my duty was finished," the young policeman told the judge.

The maid did not notify the prosecutor, her finance did.

Record Baby Crop In State

Familes More Numerous In The Past Decade

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—Missouri produced a record crop of babies during the 1940-50 decade, the census bureau reported today.

The increase noted in a preliminary report on the 150 census, showed it was accompanied by an unprecedented proportion of married people in the general population.

And, along with this increase in the number of families, the average size of the individual household decreased.

The state's total population in 150,3,955,000.

During the ten-year period, the number of children under 10 years of age jumped 27 per cent as compared to a five per cent increase in total population.

This was due, the census bureau said, to higher birth rates and reductions in infant morality. At the same time, the bureau found that people were living longer with the result that the average age of a Missourian is now 33.7 years as compared to 31.2 in 1940.

Apparently most of the kiddies were born since World War II. This was determined by the fact that school enrollment (5 to 24 years) is about the same as it was in 1940: A total of 666,000. The children born since the war had not yet entered school at the time the census was taken.

Married 68 Per Cent

Marriage is a highly popular institution in Missouri. The statistic showed that in 1950, of all persons 14 years old and over, 2,051,000 or 68 per cent were married. The figure in 1940 was 62 per cent.

Of the state's 970,000 married couples, all but 40,000 were living in their own households.

Most Missourians are city dwellers. At the time of the census, only four out of every 10 persons were living in a rural area.

About the same number of people were working in 1950 as in 1940. The total labor force (employed, unemployed or in the armed forces) was 1,546,000. Unemployment was only four per cent as compared to 15 per cent in 1940.

The generally high employment levels were reflected in family income figures. The average family had and income of $2,516 in 1949. About 47 per cent of the families and unrelated individuals living in the state received annual incomes of less than $2,000 while about 11 per cent reported incomes of $5,000 or more.

Boyle Says U. S. Army Hits Hard

NORMAN, Okla., April 7—(AP)—Associated Press columnist Hal Boyle today expressed confidence United Nations troops could hold their own "unless Soviet Russia enters the picture in force and the Korean police campaign deteriorates into a real Third World War."

His speech closed the Southwestern. Journalism Congress meeting, held on the University of Oklahoma campus. The Congress is composed of faculties and students of 14 schools of journalism in Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

Boyle told the group:

"The U. S. Eighth Army in Korea is now as well-balanced and hard-hitting an army as the American people ever sent overseas.

"It should be able to protect itself against any ground force the Reds can now mass against it —unless Soviet Russia enters the picture in force and the Korean police campaign deteriorates into a real Third World War.

"The United Nations army has already thrown back an enemy force of 500,000 troops and destroyed its attack power. It can still meet and maul another 500,000 enemy. The Reds would have to launch an offensive with at least 1,000,000 trained troops if they still have any hope of backing the United Nations forces out of Korea.

"And even these 1,000,000 Red troops would have to be powerfully supported by air. There are signs that the Reds are stepping up their air offensive, but the U. S. Air Force feels confident it can outfight in the sky any airpower the Reds can throw into action over Korea."

Patrol Captures Man Who Fled Accident Scene

A man giving the name of Glen Arland Semmons was picked up by the police shortly after 11:30 p. m. Saturday in connection with an accident on highway 50 in front of the Al Schriner service station. The man later admitted to State Trooper Pete Stohr he was the driver of one car which had been in the accident, and he was then lodged in the county jail.

Semmons drove a 1937 Chevrolet coach which was in collision with a 1941 Oldsmobile coach, driven by Elmer Hamel, 1225 West Spring. Miss Betty Maynard, 417 East 27th, was a passenger in the Hamel car. No one was injured but Semmons, who had a slight scratch under his left eye.

The collision occurred at about 8:15 o'clock. The Semmons car was traveling east and Hamel was going west, to the drive-in theater, when the collision occurred. Hamel said he attempted to miss Semmons, but the two cars side-swiped. Damage to both cars was heavy.

The State Patrol was called and arrived on the scene fifteen minutes later from west Pettis county. When Semmons saw the patrol he fled to "tall timber" and was not located. He left his car behind and it was taken to the city police station by the Chamberlin wrecker.

In the Schriner station Semmons wanted to reach an agreement before the police arrived on the scene but Hamel refused. Semmons also stated that he was going to Arkansas.

Safety Campaign For Bicyclists

The Sedalia Junior Chamber of Commerce this week plans to launch its bicycle safety program at which time Scotchlite reflective tape will be applied to all bicycles in Sedalia.

J. L. Van Wagner, Jr., chairman of the safety committee of the Jaycees, states that the tape to be applied to the bicycles is highly reflective of light and after proper application will stay on the bicycles for years. Seven pieces of red and silver reflective tape will be applied to each bicycle on the front, side and rear so that at night automobile headlights will be clearly reflected from any angle, thus making them much safer to ride. There is, of course, no charge for this tape and it is the hope of the Jaycees that every bicycle in Sedalia at the close of this campaign will be brightly, and safely, "Scotchlited."

A schedule has been worked out whereby the safety committee will call at each public and parochial school in Sedalia one afternoon this week and will be ready to make application of the tape when the school is dismissed that afternoon.

The safety committee will be at the armory on Saturday morning to Scotchlite all bicycles that have been missed during the week. The complete schedule for this program will be found elsewhere in this issue.

US To Assist Battle Against Iran Locusts

The big airplanes are C-54's, which between them will carry half a dozen hedge-hopping aircraft (Piper Cubs or Stearmans). Eulogy On Miss Eunice Cousley

Miss Nina Babcock, former Sedalian, one of the owners of the Cedar Springs, Mich., Clipper, recently learning of the death of Miss Eunice Cousley, retired Sedalia teacher, expresses her opinion of Miss Cousley and the influence she had on pupils, in a short article in Miss Babcock's own column, "As the World Wags." She writes:

"In a teacher's life there are hundreds of pupils, but in a pupil's life there are few teachers, and there are favorites.

"Last week I learned of the death of one of my very favorites, Eunice Cousley, who spent her life in the high school in Sedalia, Mo. And over the world there are thousands of her pupils who know the lasting influence of her teaching.

"She was our English teacher. She was an authority on Shakespeare, a perfectionist in the English language. She taught us the precepts of good citizenship; she set a pattern of Christian living which we shall never forget.

"We, her pupils, can hear her now in chapel as her persuasive, melodious voice read the 103rd Psalm: "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless His holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits."

"We still can hear her, as she made real to us the characters of Hamlet, King Lear, Macbeth, As You Like It. We can hear her now as she taught Burk's Speech on Conciliation.

"Death has not stilled her voice. We whose lives were influenced by this great teacher, Eunice Cousley, will hear her voice as long as we live."

Anxious Probes Are Continued

By John Chadwick

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP)—Senator Wiley (R-Wis) demanded today "an early showdown" on the question of keeping the Senate's crime investigation, alive.

At the same time Wiley, a member of the crime-hunting committee, said it was utterly fantastic" that three reputed Capone mob leaders haven't been questioned by the group.

They are Charles and Rocco Fischetti and Murray L. (the Camel) Humphreys. All three surrendered earlier this week to Senate sergeant at arms Joseph C. Duke.

Wiley and Senator Tobey (R-NH), another member of the committee, have drafted a resolution to extend the nationwide probe until Jan. 15. The committee headed by Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.), is due to expire at the end of this month.

Wiley said in a statement that an early showdown on their resolution is imperative. If a decision is put off until the last days of April, he said, the probe might be killed off by "parliamentary delaying tactics."

Kefauver, now away for a rest, has said the Fischettis and other previously missing witnesses may be questioned by the crime probers if there is time.

But he is opposed by any extension of the committee beyond the extra month already given it. He says the committee's first job is to finish its report and draft its proposals of laws to curb interstate crime.

If time is not left for questioning the Fischettis and others, Kefauver said, this can be done by one of the Senate's regular committees or by any group set up to carry on the crime committee's work.

Square Dance Revival Recalls Play-Parties of Years Ago

By the State Historical Society of Missouri at Columbia C. Shoemaker, Secretary

"Swing your partner and let her go;
Balance all and do-se-do!"

The calls that ring out across square dance floors all over the state today have changed little since Missourians first got together to the lively measures of "Arkansas Traveler" or "Fisher's Hornpipe." Many of the old tunes and calls have been dusted off for use in the recent revival of this favorite pioneer recreation.

A square dance held at a farmhouse in Callaway county in the 1840's, as described by an old settler, seems typical of those in Missouri in the 19th century. At that dance folks began to gather soon after the evening chores were done, and by 8 o'clock every tree and sapling in the vicinity had a horse tied to it. The parlor was full of women and girls gossiping and giving last minute touches to curls and ribbons, while young men dressed in new "blue jeanes suits" and high heeled boots congregated in the yard. Many men wore spure, which they took off before dancing.

Soon the fiddlers seated on a platform in one corner of the main room struck up on "Gray Eagle." "Partners all!" was the signal, and sets were soon made up. Perspiring dancers executed the figures as the caller shouted above the music:

"Now right hand to your lady,
Swing right and left about.
Now all hold your places steady—
Fourth couple lead out!
Balance all and cut a caper.
Swing your corners right . . ."

Far into the night hoop skirts and slippers flashed through the movements of the pioneer square dance.

But the stirring tunes of the dance were thought to be immoral by some early Missourians, and they regarded the fiddle as the Devil's own instrument. Recreation for the young people in those families took the form of the "play-party," which was believed to be altogether different.

The play-party games were actually dances without an orchestra, and some scoffers called them "Presbyterian dances." The players furnished their own music by singing rhythmic verses as they moved through the intricate figures. Spectators clapped hands and stomped feet to keep the time.

Play-party songs were often derived from centuries-old ballads brought by early settlers to America, and several of the "games" strongly resembled the Virginia Reel. Favorite songs included "Skip to My Lou," "Marching Down to Old Quebec," "Weevily Wheat," and "Girl I Left Behind Me."

In "Old Dan Tucker" the players chose partners and formed a big circle, holding hands. One boy called "Old Dan" stood alone in the center and tried to grab himself a partner as the other young people went through the figures and sang lustily:

"Ol' Dan Tucker is a fine ol' man,
Washed his face in a fryin' pan,
Combed his head with a wagon wheel,
An' died with a toothache in his heel

Allies Investigate the West German-Soviet Illicit Arms Trade

By Leon Dennen
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Allied occupation authorities in Frankfurt are investigating what is believed to be a large-scale illicit traffic in arms between Western Germany and Soviet Russia's satellites.

The investigation resulted from a recent attempt by a West German shipyard to transfer secretly to Red Hungary a Danubian river fleet consisting of ten armored monitors, tankers and barges.

An anti-Red underground organization operating in the U. S. zone of Germany is credited with exposing the deal, said to have been concluded last December between the German firm and the Hungarian Trade Delegation stationed in Frankfurt.

U. S. officials believe that they may now be able to check the flow of strategic war materials from Western Germany to the countries behind the iron curtain.

The Danubian fleet, which also includes the "Hungaria," luxury yacht Hitler gave to Admiral Horthy, actually once belonged to Hungary.

Badly damaged by Allied bombs, the fleet was transferred to Germany at the end of 1944 and anchored on the Danube between Passau and Regensburg. Subsequently it was confiscated by the U. S. military authorities as enemy property and sold to the Steg, a Bavarian post-war commercial organization charged with the disposal of such property.

In recent months the ships were undergoing repair in a shipyard in Deggendorf, Bavaria, known as the Deggendorfer Werft, Inc.

Budapest was apparently anxious to acquire the fleet for use against Marshal Tito and to paralyze shipping on the Danube river, the main waterway which links Bavaria, Austria, Hungary and Yugoslavia. It was used in military operations against Yugoslavia in the last war.

Claim Made Of Illegal Seizure

Charles W. Thompson, Jr., of the Pla-Mor Recreation Parlor; Charles B. McEniry and F. J. "Joe" McEniry, formerly the the Smoke-House; and Robert L. Ream of the B and H. Cigar store, filed for motion in the Circuit Court Friday to suppress gaming evidence against them, which they claim was illegally seized and obtained in a raid on their business establishments December 20, 1950 by the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

The four-named men are the principal figures in the trial which is scheduled to start in Circuit Court Monday. They all are charged with keeping gaming devices in their places of business.

The raid which was made by the State Patrol, confiscated dice, punch boards, tip boards and other gambling articles. However the defendants, in the case claim the State Patrol acted without a warrant. This they claim, violates constitutional rights against an unreasonable search. They ask that all seized evidence be withheld from the trial.

DRESSES ARE MAKING AN EXCITING ENTRANCE for summer. Linens in all the ice cream colors are very good. You will find many of them trimmed in lace dyed to match and it makes a beautiful dress at a moderate price. Keep in mind that most of the linen-type fabrics are wrinkle-resistant and you will be crisp looking at the end of the day. For more dress-up occasions have some slippers dyed to match. The chambrays and tissue ginghams are beautifully trimmed with smart buttons and some matching belts. You'll want a voille too and you should start looking for them now. Some of them are rather tailored with bracelet length sleeves—wear a large picture hat with them and matching gloves. Of course, you'll be wearing a large bunch of flowers at the neckline or at your waistline.

Expense Cut Easy But Hold On To Fun

By Adelaide Kerr
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK, April 7—(AP)—If you are cutting expenses to beat inflation, don't cut out the fun.

Take this advice from Dr. Neva Radell, a family budget expert who has helped 1,500 people chart their spending to get more out of life. As assistant professor of home economics at Teachers college, Columbia university, she has taught family planning and surveyed student money headaches for 10 years.

"Most people could beat inflation if they used the right system," she says. "But thousands use the wrong one and take the joy out of life. "Don't give up the movies, your fur coat, your fishing trips or other things that make you happy. Trim your daily expenses. When you study the situation, you will be amazed to learn how much hard-earned cash slips through your fingers.

"One girl I helped earned a good salary. But she had a habit of getting up 10 minutes too late every morning, and rushing to the office in a taxi. After she stopped it, she saved enough money in six months to make the first payment on a fur coat.

"A man though he had to entertain business friends at cocktails every day. When he found out how much this cost him every month he was stunned—and decided he would rather spend the money on a living room rug.

Leaks That Dribble

"The mid-morning coffee, the careless use of soapflakes, the blouse or ties you bought on sale, but could not match to any of your suits—all these are leaks, which dribble away your money. By stopping them you can save unlimited amounts.

"It's useless to waste your energy getting exasperated at inflation. It has been with us on a gradual scale for decades, and it probably will be with you as long as you live. No matter how much your income is, there will be an increased demand to match it. So you might as well learn to handle the situation."

Dr. Radell says the secret of success in beating inflation is to keep records and keep checking up on them. Using that system, she and her sister, Inez Radell, have a six-room New York apartment, a country cottage and a car—and take frequent trips. This is the way she outlines her system:

"Keep a record of every cent you spend for one or two months. Every member of the family should do this. Study the record carefully and find out just what you spend money for and how much you spend. Then make your plan.

"First take the fixed expenses—rent, taxes, life insurance, pension payments. Add them and subtract the total from your income. Divide what is left into categories—food; clothing and its upkeep; personal expense (such as grooming and cigarettes); social development (movies, entertainment, hobbies); the family car, travel; vacations; contributions; savings and the children's allowances. No miscellaneous items. Classify everything.

"Then decide where you will spend and where you will trim.

"After you make your plan, continue to keep a daily record in a notebook. At the end of the month transfer it to a big record book. At the end of the year, compare your estimate with what actually happened and check every item to see whether you got value received and whether you are spending for what you really want.

"Do this faithfully and it will teach you more than how to handle your money. It will make you think about what you really want out of life—and whether you are getting it or not."

KC Police Raid Bookie Joint

KANSAS CITY, April 7—(AP)—Police raided the "Twelfth Street Recreation" shop Friday and Jackson County Prosecutor Henry H. Fox, Jr., said they seized records which showed "that a bookmaking operation was being conducted on much more than just a local scale."

The raiding squad found evidence that checks had been issued ranging from $100 to $22,000. Fox said the checks had been issued to bookmakers or horse race gamblers.

Earlier, Fox led police into another establishment on complaint that a horse racing handbook was in operation there. Two men were arrested and booked for investigation. Fox identified them as Joseph D. Morris and Herman Shapiro.

While police cleaned out the office, Prosecutor Fox answered the telephone and talked to persons attempting to place bets.

In the second raid at the recreation shop, Fox said they picked up checks and bank records of the Western News Service Company. The records, Fox said, indicated Western was doing business with many persons out of town.

Two of the big checks—both for $15,000—had been paid to A. R. Gizzo.

Sedalia Ball Clubs To Hold Tryouts Today

Weather Permitting Sedalia's Parks Will Be Scene Of Activity

Sedalia's baseball parks are going to be busy today — if the weather man permits—with teams being organized and practice sessions being held. Baseball players anxious to make teams are to report at Liberty park, Housel park, and Center park.

The Ban Johnson Chiefs are to practice at 1:30 p. m. on the Center park diamond. The call for practice was made Saturday by Joe Imhauser, new playing manager of the Chiefs.

All Positions Open

"All positions are open," Imhauser said, including the pitching staff of which I'm a part. What the sponsors are most anxious for is to have a winning team and today we will start practicing and later will determine just what players will compose the squad," Imhauser said.

Several 1950 players are reporting back and start working out the winter wrinkles. They will have to work for the positions the same as any new player who expects to try out.

Over in Northeast Sedalia at Housel park the Teen-Age Blues open practice at 1 p. m. It will be the second practice for the team since it was organized two weeks ago.

Manager Jack Slocum in discussing the team said like Imhauser, "All positions are still open." Slocum has already selected two coaches to help with the team in Doc Snavely and Lopp Barnes, both well known to baseball fans of central Missouri.

Moose First Practice

The Moose club team, the first to be sponsored by this organization is entering the semi-pro field and will hold the first practice of the season from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. on the Liberty park diamond. Billy G. Hill has been selected to take over the management of the club with Al Newman as the business manager.

The fact this is the first team to enter the semi-pro field this year the best talent in Sedalia is expected to report for tryouts today. Contacts have already been started for games with Sedalia, Springfield, and Kansas City clubs.

Junior Legion Workouts

Players who plan on trying out for the Moose are requested to call 3265 after 2 p. m. and register their intentions, if they are unable to report for practice today.

The Junior American Legion team has called for practice at 2:30 p. m. on the Liberty park diamond. All players of the Legion age bracket are requested to report at the park early and be ready to take to the field promptly at the practice hour.

Pittsburg Scores Narrow Track Win Over Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 7—(AP)—Pittsburg (Kas) State edged Springfield (Mo) State 71 to 65 today in a dual track meet that was an even battle down to the final event—the mile relay.

Long-striding Jim Ruggles kicked the Kansans to victory in the mile relay and that decided the meet. Glen Smyth won both hurdle events for ten points in leading Pittsburg.

Gene Gross scored 11 points for Springfield with victories in the 100-yard dash and broad jump, and a place in the high jump.

Browns Whip Missions For Fourth Straight

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 7—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns ran their winning streak against the San Antonio Missions to four straight today with a 5 to 2 triumph over their Texas League farm club.

Roy Sievers hit a three-run homer for the Brown's big blow.

Spot On Cats' All-Foe Team To Lovellette

MANHATTAN, Kas., April 7—(AP)—Two Big Seven centers were included on the "All Opponents" basketball teams selected by members of the Kansas State Wildcats' team. K-State met five of the top ten teams in the country.

Clyde Lovellette, University of Kansas prolific point-getter, earned a spot on the first five. Missouri's Bill Stauffer, an All-Big Seven selection this year, was given a place on the second quintet.

Skoog Unanimous Choice

Only player given unanimous mention on the first team by the K-Staters was Myer (Whitey) Skoog of Minnesota, also tabbed as the outstanding player faced by the Wildcats this season. Skoog tossed in 22 points against Kansas State in the finals of the Big Seven pre-season tournament although K-State won, 70-62.

Spivey On Second Squad

Somewhat of a surprise was the second team placing of All-American Bill Spivey, seven-foot-tall center of the Kentucky team which downed Kansas State in the NCAA finals at Minneapolis. Spivey tied with Mel Hutchins of Brigham Young in the balloting.

The Kentucky team, however, was named the top club faced by the Wildcats this year. Second best went to Indiana which downed the Cats 58-52 early in the season.

First Team

Named to the first team were: Whitey Skoog, Minnesota; Bill Garrett, Indiana; Sherman White, Long Island U.; Clyde Lovellette, Kansas, and Don Sunderlage, Illinois.

Second Team

Making up the second five were: Mel Hutchins, Brigham Young, Bill Spivey, Kentucky; Roland Minson, Brigham Young; Bill Stauffer, Missouri; and Roger Johnson, Arizona.

Honorable Mention

Honorable mention was accorded to Rod Fletcher, Illinois; Wayne Tucker, Colorado; Jim Buchanan, Nebraska; Dan Witt, Missouri; Maynard Johnson, Minnesota; Marcus Frieberger, Oklahoma; Al Masters, Indiana; Frank Ramsey, Lucian Whitaker and Bob Watson, Kentucky, and Bert Cook, Utah State.

"Slue" Hull To Coach Texas U. Cage Squad, Succeeding Jack Gray

AUSTIN, Tex., April 7—(AP)—Thurman B. (Slue) Hull, former University of Texas basketball star, returned to his alma mater today as head cage coach.

He succeeds Jack Gray, who resigned after leading his team to a share of the Southwest conference championship.

He served two years as head basketball coach of Temple high school, going from there to Beaumont to coach Lamar Tech for three years.

Snead Slams Way Into Tie With Reigel

Sammy's 66 Erases Skee's Slim Margin In Masters Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 7—(AP)—Sammy Snead's blazing copper-headed putter and a dreary, drenching rain caught Robert (Skee) Riegel today and so its a two-way tie for first going into the final round of the Masters Golf tournament.

The hillbilly Groesus from White Sulphur Springs, West Va., and the young professional from Tulsa, Okla., the halfway pacesetter, were bracketed at the 54-hole stage with 211, five-under-par for the Augusta National course.

Snead, stroking sensationally on the Greens, whipped around the 6,900-yard, par 36-36—72 layout in 34-34—68, finishing with the hottest round of the day.

Sam Beats The Rain

It was perfectly dry when Sam started before noon and it was only drizzling slightly when he came in to report his best card in weeks.

Riegel, the former U. S. Amateur champion with the blacksmith arms, had to look at this sizzling round and then go out and try to match it in a rain that grew in intensity. The skies were gushing when he holed out a par on the sodden 18th for a remarkable 70.

Just one stroke back at 212 going into tomorrow's climatic round is that ever-pressing little guy from Texas, Ben Hogan, who matched Riegel's 70 before the course became almost unplayable.

Lloyd Mangrum, the dapper Niles, Ill., veteran who won the National Open in 1946, was in fourth place with 213 after a hard-earned 33-37—70. He finished after Riegel.

Lew Worsham, Jr., the apple-cheeked Oakmont, Pa., professional, followed at 214, a stroke in front of former National Open champion Cary Middlecoff of Memphis and Dave Douglas, of Newark, Del.

Fazio, Bulla Still In Contention

George Fazio, the scrapiron dealer from Shohocken, Pa., who led in the opening round, shared the 216 bracket with Johnny Bulla, long-socking former airline pilot from Phoenix, Ariz. After these, it doesn't matter much.

Jimmy Demaret, the three-time winner and defending champion, was among the "other scores" with 228—a tremendous comedown for one of the game's leading stars.

Other scorers:

(X) Charles Coe, Oklahoma City, 76-71-73—220.

E. J. Harrison, St. Andrew, Ill., 76-71-76—223.

Leland Gibson, Kansas City, Mo., 74-74-75—223.

CMSC's Championship Squad To Be Honored Tuesday Nite

The M. I. A. A. championship Central Missouri State college basketball team will be honored at the annual cage award banquet, Tuesday evening, April 10, at Riggle's in Warrensburg. Dr. T. Reed Maxon, president of the Mule Skinners organization, has announced that the public is invited to attend the dinner and reservations may be made with him. The banquet will start at 7 o'clock.

Old Guns Found

BURNET, Tex. — (AP) — A number of old guns have been found scattered among the boulders of a natural rock fort near this Central Texas town. Apparently they mark the site of an Indian raid on a camp of white settlers. Donald Murchison was running his trap lines on the ranch of his father, Oscar Murchison, when he found the guns on the side of a rock hill.

With the guns were iron cooking utensils and other items. Donald went for help. He returned and gathered nine flint lock rifles of varied size and length, minus stocks long exposed to the weather. A Spanish axe similar to present day pictures of Spanish tools was found, also scythe blades, an old wood auger, a pair of steel stirrups but no saddle, a Spanish spur, a bullet-mold, Indian grinding stones used in grinding grain, a cannon ball and various iron pots and a large brass key.

The Murchison family has lived on the ranch for more than 85 years. The presumption is that the quipment was left on the hillside by victims of Indians, or robbers.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

SEDALIA'S old story—the meanest man or woman in Sedalia —the dog poisoner has been at work again. Several pets of children have fallen victims of the ruthless hand of the person or persons who toss poisoned food to the dogs. Try and try as pet lovers have they have been unable to actually put a "finger" on who is doing this dastardly trick.

Luckily no child has picked up any of the poison, although it could be possible, but I doubt very much if it would have any efefct on a person who would stoop so low as to kill dogs by this method. But if this person or persons would give it some thought, maybe he or she would think twice before "setting" a trap for a dog.

Persons who have been caught killing people have been sent to the gas chamber, the electric chair and others sentenced to life in prison. Sentenced for taking a life. But they feel free to take the life—the life of a dog which might be some child's pet and in turn cause this child or even an adult to be heart sick for months over the loss.

Someone, sometime is going to see this act done and the coward will find himself or herself in the clutches of the law. But the punishment to be dealt isn't anything what it should be. Life to a dog is just as valuable to the dog as life is to a human.

It is something to think about. I doubt if the person who commits these acts even will see this article, for the reason they couldn't have any sporting blood running through their veins, hence the sports page will be passed by him or her.

PERSONALLY I had a pet die from being poisoned, I have friends who had pets destroyed in the same manner, and I know many many Sedalians who likewise have lost their pets and valuable dogs killed. To me I wonder why after so much of this has gone on, not only in Sedalia, but throughout the state, that the State Legislature hasn't done something about making it a felony, a penitentiary offense.

I am sure with all the Legislators who are in the House and Senate at Jefferson City, there is one, two, three of more who have lost pets in this manner. They are in a position now to do something about it.

So I suggest it be taken up by some Representative who will get a bill passed making this a felony offense. Put teeth in it, something that will make these killers think.

APPARENTLY new Cardinal manager Marty Marion is a believer in old adage that sentiment has no place in professional competition. Last week he cut at least one hunk of dead wood from the Card pitching staff when he released Fred Martin to Houston, granting his spot to rookie Joe Presko, a graduate of the Kansas City Ban Johnson circuit. Martin is a long-term teammate of Marty's and Presko is a newcomer, but Fred is over-the-hill, and the rookie shows a world of promise. From this angle it appears that the Cardinal players are going to have to win places on the 1951 ball-club on their present merits, not those owned in 1946 or 1948. Wonder who'll be the next to go?

Local Field Trial Winds-Up Meeting With All-Age Stake

The Midwest Pointer and Setter club will wind up its annual spring trial today with the running of the All-Age Stake. The trial is held on the club's reserve near Bahner, with headquarters on the Frank Van Dyke farm.

The Amateur Puppy and Open Puppy stakes were run off Saturday. Both stakes were the largest held in the state this year, and the cream of the nation's trial pups were entered in both events.

The Amateur Stake was won by Wonnie's Pippen, owned and handled by Loyal Wonneman, of Mexico, Mo.; Buddy, owned by Dr. Walter Holbrook of Kansas City and handled by J. C. Griffin of Sedalia, finished second; and Wonnie's Rickey, owned by Dr. H. I. Neshien of Mexico and handled by Loyal Wonneman came home third. There were 14 entries in this class.

Wichita Boy Wins Open

Wichita Boy, one of the best dogs on the spring circuit, took first honors in the Open Puppy stake. He is owned by G. F. Christman of Wichita and was handled by E. B. Epperson of the same city. Following the Boy home in this class were Wonnie's Pippen, winner of the Amateur stake in second place; and Buddy, owned by J. H. Massey of Ft. Worth, Tex. and handled by G. D. Miller, finished third. There were 15 dogs in this stake.

Today's finale will see 22 top-notch, seasoned field trial veterans running for first honors. Most of the dogs entered have won in previous trials.

Two fine entries are Lad Eugene's Beau, owned and handled by J. C. Griffin of Sedalia, and Eugene's Roller Ghost, owned and handled by Dr. Fisk of Lebanon. Griffin's dog won the All-Age at Springfield two weeks ago; Dr. Fisk's champion has 18 titles to his credit. Griffin's dog will be run in the first brace of the day, and the doctor's in the eleventh.

Breezaway Highly Regarded

Another highly-regarded performer is Breezaway, owned and handled by W. W. Hutto of Kansas City. Breezaway is entered in the tenth heat.

Judges for the trial will be Gerald Jordan of Vandalia, and Roma Endicott of St. Louis. Dogs will be awarded extra points for proper handling of prairie chickens, but will not be penalized for failing to do so—the trial is primarily for quail dogs.

The first brace will be set-down at 8:00 a. m. The Bahner Catholic church will serve a noon-day meal.

Brace pairings are as follows:

First Brace—Chasseur, owned by Sam McCluney of Warrensburg and handled by W. W. Hutto; Lad Eugene Beau, owned and handled by J. C. Griffin.

Second Brace—Arrigan's Flying Johnny, owned and handled by Lee Shull, Kansas City, Kas.; Peerless Flobeau's Lou, owned and handled by B. F. Ferrier of Linn.

Third Brace — Kelly's Ariel Shoals, owned and handled by E. L. Kelly of Kansas City; Al's Spunky Girl, owned and handled by Henry Oldhand of Pittsburg, Kas.

Fourth Brace—Moving On, owned and handled by Al Bolland of St. Louis; Westwood Frank, owned and handled by Dr. Frank Hogan of Kansas City.

Fifth Brace—Yon Lady, owned and handled by Phil Russell of Kansas City; Edmont Nola, owned and handled by Ed Pugh of Kansas City.

Sixth Brace—Duke of Ballast, owned and handled by Hap Wilder of St. Louis; Silvan Sister, owned and handled by Fred Zick of Tulsa, Okla.

10 Year Dream Being Realized By Kirchhofer

A dream of more than ten years has been realized by Roy "Dutch" Kirchhofer, well known Sedalian, in the purchase of the Colonial Tavern at Union, Mo., on highway 50. The transaction was completed several weeks ago and since that time up until the past week was closed for repairs and redecoration.

The establishment is owned and operated by Mr. Kirchhofer and Walter Johnson, also of Sedalia. Both men will divide their time between the Colonial Tavern at Union and the Pacific Cafe in Sedalia which is owned by Mr. Kirchhofer and managed by Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Kirchhofer for years in his travels to and from St. Louis to attend the baseball games of the St. Louis Cardinals has stopped at the Colonial House, which is now renamed. Several times he made an offer to purchase the business and each time was turned down until last winter when a proposal was made to him for the sale.

Another factor which spurred him to the purchase was during his boyhood he spent considerable time in Washington, Union and other communities in that area visiting with relatives of his mother and father. He made many friends in Union and they encouraged him to locate there.

The place has been completely redecorated and all new fixtures were purchased for it. It will be operated on the same policy as the Pacific here in Sedalia serving of food and liquors, during the week days while on Sunday's the tavern section of the establishment will be closed.

Like the Pacific, the Colonial Tavern walls will have pictures of oldtime baseball favorites as well as present stars of the major leagues.

It is located at the junction of highway 50 and the Main street entering the business section of Union.

"I hope to make it the meeting place for baseball fans from Sedalia going to and from the games," Kirchhofer said.

4 Records Fall In Texas Relays; Texas Ags Get 2

AUSTIN, Tex., April 7—(AP)—Four records fell and two others were tied as the Texas relays stormed to a boisterous close today—and Texas A & M furnished the big ones.

Vaulter Davis, 6-foot-8 basketball star of the Aggies, shocked the crowd of 6,500 by not only winning the high jump but leaped 6 feet 9 inches for a new record. It was the second highest a man has jumped in the nation this year.

Darrow Hooper, football giant of Texas A & M, shoved the shot 53 feet 1 inch for another record. He did it in yesterday's preliminaries and was unable to better his mark today. But it had wiped out one of the oldest records in the books—the 52 feet, 3/4 inch heave of Elmer Hackeny of Kansas State in 1939.

Texas A & M and Oklahoma galloped off with the most first places in the university-college division, each getting four and each also having one tie.

Oklahoma did most of its point-making in the relays while the Aggies counted heaviest in the field.

Davis beat out the co-holder of the relays record—Virgil Severns of Kansas State—in winning the high jump. Severns last year tied with Jack Razetto of San Diego State in hanging up the record of 6 feet 8 1/4 inches.

Leo Lutz Named Pilot Of Tipton Cardinals; K Of C Sponsors Team

The Tipton Knights of Columbus will sponsor the towns baseball team this year and it will be known as the Tipton Cardinals. The Cardinals are members of the Central Missouri Baseball League and are managed by Leo Lutz of Tipton.

Lutz is widely known in Central Missouri baseball circles and plans to field a top grade diamond team this year for Tipton. Along with Lutz there will be a committee of three men to help with various problems. They are Jim Schreck, chairman; Albert Woif and Edward Fisher committeemen Richard Schmity is business manager.

Final plans are not complete but games will probable be played on Thomas field.

Lotowhite Closes Fast To Take Jamaica Purse

NEW YORK, April 7 — (AP) — Apparently hopelessly beaten at the head of the stretch, Lotowhite surged through the last 100 yards like a hurricane to win the $25,000 Excelsior handicap before a near record crowd of 52,100 at Jamaica today.

Lotowhite, under a smart ride by Eddie Arcaro, was up in the final strides to win a head decision over Mrs. Andy Schuttinger's Ferd, which in turn was three-quarters of a length to the good of Yolo stables Great Circle in the field of 11 starters.

The four-year-old son of Devil Diver-Lotopoise earned a net purse of $20,750 for his owner, T. G. Benson, Texas oilman.

Cooper Vaults Nearly 15 Feet Against Buffs

BOULDER COLO., April 7—(AP)—Bespectacled Don Cooper of the University of Nebraska vaulted 14 feet 9¼ inches off a dirt track in an indoor track meet with Colorado tonight.

Coach Frank Potts of Colorado's track team said: "It's my honest belief this is a college record for an indoor jump off a dirt track." Available references did not show a record for that type of a jump.

The world's pole vault record for outdoors is 15 feet 7¾ inches.

Cooper made his record try after winning the event with a 1' feet jump. He first tried 14 feet 6½ inches and cleared that on his third jump. He cleared 14 feet 9¼ inches on his first try.

A resident of New York, Nebr., Cooper is the current Big Seven conference vaulting champion. He is 5 feet 10 inches and weighs about 160 pounds.

Steeplechase A Nightmare

34 Of 36 Entries Fall; Lose Riders In Grand National

AINTREE, England, April 7—(AP)—The Grand National Steeplechase turned into a tumbling nightmare today as 34 horses fell or lost their riders. Only the winner, Nickel Coin, and the runner-up, Royal Tan came home without mishap.

Only three horses finished, one a remount.

8th Fence Spills Arctic Gold

Arctic Gold, the 8 to 1 post-time favorite from the stable of New York millionaire John Hay (Jock) Whitney, came to grief at the eighth fence. That is the noted canal turn, where the horses must veer sharply to the left to avoid the Leeds-Liverpool canal skirting the course. Arctic Gold had taken the lead from Caesar's Wife and Rowland Roy two fences earlier at Becher's Brook.

By the time Arctic Gold went down, almost all of the other popular horses were gone too, in one of the most astonishing Nationals since the first one raced in 1839.

250,000 Tense With Excitement

Thirty-one horses fell or lost riders in the first two and one-quarter miles of this catastrophic race. The crowd of 250,000 screamed and waved arms in tense excitement.

Nickel Coin, a 40 to 1 shot, partial to duck eggs and Irish beer, won the four mile and 856-yard race by six lengths from Royal Tan. Jockey Tony Power was thrown clear by Derrinstown about a mile from home. He remounted and the horse finished third. Royal Tan started at 22 to 1, and Derrinstown was 66 to 1.

Five Horses Scratched

Five were scratched from the final running. They were T.O.D., Knight's Pass, Hal's Venture, September Air, and Lucky Purchase.

Jockeys, owners and trainers blamed the fiasco on a bad start. The starting net seemed to slap several horses in the face when sprung. They got as excited as a crowd of women in a bargain basement.

Coaltown Makes Great Comeback

SAN MATEO, Calif., April 7—Coaltown, one-time world's record holder, made a smashing comeback today to win the $15,000 added Art Sparks handicap at Bay Meadows in a photo finish.

The Calumet farm flier, whose last two performances have been so dismal that there was talk of withdrawing him from racing, turned the six furlongs in 1:09 4/5, one fifth of a second off the track record.

The six-year-old son of Bull Lea drove down the stretch to hang a nose decision over Special Touch while 18,848 fans cheered the thrilling finish. Manyunk, running as an entry with Special Touch, was third.

Coaltown paid $6.90, $3.50 and $6.10. The entry of Special Touch and Manyunk returned $4 and $3.60.

Midgets Team-Tag Event

Best 2 falls out of 3, 1 hour limit.

Time: 9 p. m. Saturday.
Place: National Guard Armory.

The toughest in wrestling will clash in the main event on the wrestling card of Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, to be held at the National Guard Armory, Saturday night, April 14. This event along with a feature attraction of four new midgets clashing in a team-tag match will give a full evening of entertainment to wrestling fans.

Roy Graham, Dallas, Tex., absent from the Sedalia activity for several months is returning to meet Ray Eckert of California, Mo., who has just about had his own way with opponents since last winter. A Graham and Eckert clash several years ago in the Sedalia ring kept the fans standing in the aisles and screaming themselves hoarse.

The feeling between these two heavies is anything but friendly and anything can happen according to Pearl Christy, promoter for the American Legion.

The "little men" of the wrestling sport promise another event full of action. Pancho the Bull, and Tom Thumb are matched against Tiny Roe and Little Beaver, the latter the midget Indian.

The little chief is a man who fears nothing and loves wrestling next to eating and sleeping. Here several weeks ago he had won the fans over and became a local favorite. Tiny Roe, being his team-mate in the match, should make him sparkle to the ringsiders.

Midgets have proven themselves as being entertaining in the wrestling ring, and as wrestlers not a mere attraction of "little men." They provide action in a sport seldom witnessed when the heavyweight wrestlers enter the ring. Their training has been on the lightweight wrestlers of the "big men" class.

Tigers Entered In Track Meet At Warrensburg

The Smith-Cotton high school track squad will make their fourth quest to show ability in track Monday afternoon in the Warrensburg triangular meet. The three teams entered are the Clinton Cardinals, Warrensburg Public Hi and Smith-Cotton.

The Tigers, who are coached by Bob Karnes, have entered meets at Central college, Kemper Military academy and the state meet a Columbia. They haven't placed higher than sixth, but have hopes of taking the Warrensburg meet Monday because the competition isn't as rough as the other larger meets, although Clinton has a highly touted team.

This will be the first out-door meet for the Bengals this year and they are counting heavily on performances by Pummill and Burton in the hurdles, McCrary and Bryant in the broad jump; Ford and Bryant in the shot put; Decker and Shawver in the high jump; O'Bannon and Brown in the 440; Schlobohm and Keenes in the mile and Keenes and Stevens in the half mile.

Biggest Catfish Tale Told By Isaac Lively --Swears It's True!

"We caught 'em so fast we could hardly finish baiting our trotline!" That's what Isaac Lively, 353 West Louisiana Street, Knoxville, Tenn., said this week in describing a recent fishing trip.

"My father, John Lively; my brother, Aman Lively, and Mr. Hardin and I put out a trotline on the French Broad, about a mile below Douglas Dam two weeks ago," he went on. "We baited our hooks with cut bait, with a drop of Doodle Oil on each piece of cut bait.

"We had the line about halfway across the river and we could feel the fish jerking on the line. We ran back on the line to get the fish off before we had finished baiting it. We had to do this three times before we could even get the hooks all baited.

"We caught eleven big catfish before we ever finished baiting the line. We trotline-fished all night, using cut bait and Doodle Oil, and we caught a total of 53 blue catfish. The biggest one we caught weighed 6½ lbs. and the smallest 1½ lbs. I can truthfully say that Doodle Oil is a wonderful lure for catfish.

"While we were fishing," Isaac Lively continued, "we saw a big catfish and a carp in a clear pool where a creek ran into the river. We threw a hook with a worm on it at the cat and he wouldn't touch it. We brought the hook out and put some Doodle Oil on it. The cat, while we were watching, took it right off. This proved to all of us that Doodle Oil really does the work."

Friends, if you like to fish—and really like to catch 'em—why not try Doodle Oil?

You see, fish depend heavily on their sense of smell to find their food . . . and Doodle Oil is an aromatic lure that acts as nothing more or less than a bait perfume. Gives your live bait or artificial lure that unusual scent that appeals to most all kinds of fish.

You've just read what Isaac Lively says about Doodle Oil and catfish. We've had other stories, just as enthusiastic, about results with Doodle Oil on pike, perch, bass, trout, crappie and others.

If your sporting goods or drug store hasn't got its stock of Doodle Oil yet, send $1.00 for each regular size bottle wanted to Davis Manufacturing Co., Dept. MO-10, Jackson Ave., Knoxville, Tenn. They will mail your order postpaid by return mail. Adv.

Injuries In Spring Training Are Heading For Record High

NEW YORK, April 7 —(AP)— Walt Dropo, Roy Campanella, George Kell, Phil Rizzuto and Allie Reynolds head a list of casualties that promises to reach a record breaking total before the major league spring training grind comes to an end.

Already more than 70 players have been stricken by injury, illness or aching muscles. Most have recovered. However, a goodly number are still nursing their ills, some with little or no relief in sight.

Dropo Latest Casualty

The most recent—and perhaps the most serious — injury befell Dropo, the slugging first baseman of the Boston Red Sox. A broken bone in his right wrist, suffered when hit by a pitched ball in a game last Sunday, may keep Dropo out of the lineup opening day.

Campanella is another who may not be ready by opening day. The Brooklyn catcher sustained a split bone in his right thumb when struck by a foul tip two weeks ago. The digit is the same one that was injured in the last month of the 1950 season.

Kell Out Last Two Weeks

Kell, the backbone of the Detroit Tigers, has been out of the lineup for two weeks with a spike wound in his right hand. Rizzuto, the Yankees' brilliant shortstop has a pulled muscle in his side as well as a sore throwing arm.

Reynolds, star righthander, is worrying the Yankees because of an inflamation of the pitching elbow that has kept him idle for weeks.

Other players currently on the sidelines for various physical reasons include Marty Marion, Cardinals, right knee; Monte Irvin, Giants, hip; Roy Weatherly, Giants, fractured jaw; Billy Johnson, Yankees, fractured rib; Walter Masterson, Red Sox and John Kucab, Philadelphia Athletics, neck infections; Bob Porterfield, Yankees, knee; Ron Northey, Chicago Cubs, knee operation; Frank Shea, Yenkees, torn back muscle; Ray Noble, Giants, sprained ankle; and Jack Banta, Dodgers, Bob Hooper, Athletics and Jim Wilson, Braves, sore arms.

Sore Arm Players Numerous

This list does not include such chronic sore arm gents as Dick Fowler and Joe Coleman of the Athletics; Ted Wilks, Cardinals and Virgil Trucks and Saul Rogovin, Tigers. It also does not include Ted Williams, still not fully recovered from an elbow operation; Bob Scheffing of the Reds, who underwent shoulder surgery, or Andy Seminick of the Phils who still wears a brace on the ankle broken last September.

Luke Easter, slugging first baseman of the Cleveland Indians recently returned to the lineup after being sidelined three weeks with a chipped elbow; Eddie Stanky of the Giants first was laid up with the flu, then was benched for another 10 days with a hairline fracture of the left wrist.

Ankle Injuries Get Stars

An ankle injury laid Vern Stephens of the Red Sox low for 10 days. Jackie Robinson missed a week with a pulled muscle. So did Gil Coan and Sam Mele of Washington.

Ankle injuries stopped Stan Musial and rookie Wally Post of the Reds for a time. Warren Spahn of the Braves nursed a sore arm for a week. Ellis Kinder of the Red Sox was hospitalized when struck by a line drive.

Brooklyn's Duke Snider tore a finger. Mickey Mantle, the Yankees' rookie sensation, was out with a sprained muscle. And so on down the line.

Braves Had Virus Infection

The oddest misfortune struck the Braves when 14 players including manager Billy Southworth and club trainer Dr. Lacks were hit by virus infection at the same time. No team escaped the flu bug entirely.

Manager Charlie Dressen of Brooklyn was hardest hit. He was hospitalized for more than three weeks by a series of illnesses that forced him to miss most of the conditioning period.

DEDICATED: To the memories of Mrs. Minnie M. Hemme, who passed away, April 7, 1950.

We had a little treasure once,
She was our joy and pride,
We loved her, Oh! perhaps too well,
For soon, she slept and died.

All within our dwelling
Are lonely in our hearts today.
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever passed away.

Sadly missed by Husband, Father, Mother and Brothers.

There were four generations attending the dinner. The day was spent taking pictures. Mrs. Renno received many nice gifts.

Forced Entry To Episcopal Church

The Episcopal church, Broadway and Ohio avenue, was illegally entered sometime during the past week by an unknown person or persons. Entrance was gained by prying open the front door with a large screwdriver or crowbar.

Locks of both the front and back doors were ruined; the tabernacle was pryed open and the pik, a small gold box in which communion bread is kept, was missing.

Police received the call about 10:15 o'clock Friday night and are making an investigation.

No One Injured In Car-Cab Smash

A 1946 Chevorlet sedan, operated by the Veteran Cab Co., and driven by Floyd Rodgers, 2205 South Ohio came to a sudden halt at the intersection of Third street and Washington avenue Friday afternoon at 4:10 o'clock to avoid striking a child. The cab stopped after entering Third street and was hit by a 1940 Pontiac, owned by Cal Rodgers Sr., and driven by E. A. Wilcox, 604 South Lamine.

Wilcox said he was going east on Third and attempted to avoid hitting the cab but skidded into it.

About $200 damage resulted to the front of the Pontiac, while considerable damage resulted to the rear of the Chevrolet.

The two drivers reached an agreement at the scene of the accident. No one was injured.

Address Given To Teachers

Dr. J. L. Zwingle, president of Park college at Parkville, addressed the Sedalia teachers at its monthly meeting held in the Smith-Cotton high school auditorium.

The subject of Dr. Zwingle's address was "Does Education Educate?" After a brief review of the attitude of the average adult towards education, he stated the various problems involved. He asserted that America glorified the teacher in some respects then poked fun at the profession as is often shown in cartoons seen in leading periodicals. He deplored that too ofter there is no central purpose of aim in the various plans and that agreement on the essential aims of the profession is a great need.

Dr. Zwingle concluded by stating what he considers the common sense aims of education, namely: More mature thinking on the pupil's side, development of the pupil's sense of responsibility, instilling a conviction of the value of democracy, development of judgment and analytical abilities, and aiding the pupil towards a knowledge of loyalty to his beliefs.

The next important event of the organization will be the annual Sedalia Teachers banquet which will be held in the high school cafeteria Friday, April 13th.

Dr. Earl Collins, president of Missouri Valley college in Marshall, will be the speaker.

Large Crowd At Minstrel Show

A packed house greeted the Missouri Pacific Women's Club Minstrel show Friday evening at the Smith-Cotton high school auditorium, the show being sponsored by the Women's club of Sedalia and the Booster club which was the first of jointly sponsored affairs of the clubs.

Palmer Nichols, chief Booster was master of ceremonies and introduced Mrs. Frank Hanigan, president of the Women's club who responded with a short talk.

The Minstrel which has traveled to various cities on the Missouri Pacific system was composed of employees at the St. Louis office with a cast of 51 persons. It was directed by E. Louis "Doc" Wolf and consisted of songs, jokes, dance routines and a "Can Can" girl chorus.

Following the show the cast were guests of the clubs at a reception at the Elks club.

Seaman Apprentice James Toboben, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Toboben, route 3, who enlisted in the navy on October 27, 1950, received his boot training at San Diego, Calif., and is now on the U. S. S. Electron in Sasebo, Japan. He was graduated from Smith-Cotton high school in 1948.

Reporting at Times Easy, Then Difficult

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, April 5—(AP)—Do you want to write for the newspapers? Would you like to be a war reporter or a foreign correspondent?

Maybe you wouldn't. But a big percentage of young Americans now growing up seem to want to be. For them newspapering still holds a lure above that of other professions that appear more humdrum.

This time of year they write deadly earnest letters to men in the field wanting to know what they should do to prepare themselves to become newspapermen. Recently I have had several such letters from high school and college students.

And the other day a fellow who works the typewriter next to mine said: "My eleven-year-old daughter just announced she is going to become a newspaperwoman, and wants to know what I think of the idea? Why don't you write a piece about the business?"

Well, future fellow citizens, here goes:

Newspapermen don't fit in any standard type of pigeonhole. They come in all sizes, shapes and temperaments. Some are full of the milk of human kindness and some are so mean they wouldn't get up to give their old mother a seat on the subway.

But, by and large, the best of them live up to an unwritten code. The goal of that code is to find out what is going on in the world, and to write down what they find out. Their newspaper then prints it.

That sounds like a very simple task — merely to find out information and put it on paper. Actually it can be, and often is, an excruciatingly complex and painful job. It is easy to get most people to tell you what they want you to know. The art of reporting is to get people to tell you what you yourself want to know—the truth of a situation. And often that isn't easy.

Some Stretch Truth

One of the most difficult things for an idealistic young man or woman reporter to realize is that nice-looking people — not only can lie boldly — they can lie with a disarming smile. And they will sometimes lie when it isn't even necessary.

As reporters grow more experienced they are rarely fooled by these people, no matter how high or low their position. The occupational hazard of older reporters is cynicism, a kind of life-weariness marked by a growing suspicion of all people. Detectives, wives and politicians are subject to this same disease. They come to doubt the existence of anything that is real and fair and true. And this disbelief can wreck an older reporter just as surely as laziness will destroy a younger one.

It doesn't take any one type of background to be a newspaperman. I've known good reporters—and writers — who started out as professional boxers or motorcycle cops. A college education, however, gives a big advantage, particularly if you take courses in the basic fields of human knowledge — history, government, language, social science, physical science. You ought to know a little something about people, birds, trees, Communism, flowers, the atom bomb and the electoral college. And some one subject you should know well—you might want to specialize in it later.

Reporting is rarely exciting physically after the first few years. After you cover ten fires, the fire bell doesn't have the same appeal. But reporting should remain mentally exciting all your life, as you go on to reporting things more important to the human way of life than fires.

The rewards? They range all the way from what a bank clerk makes to an income of a bank president. If you really yearn to own a yacht, however, it might be wise to try some other occupation. But the highest reward of a real newspaperman is to have another newspaperman he respects say: "I liked your story. It had it."

You can't deposit such compliments in the bank. But if a man gets enough of them he can grow old gracefully in the newspaper business.

Stamps In The News

By Syd Kronish

The first U. S. commemorative stamp to be issued this year is the 3-cent stamp honoring the Final Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans. This stamp will be first placed on sale at Norfolk, Va., on May 30, 1951.

The central design of this gray colored adhesive shows a Confederate veteran as he appears today. In the background is the same veteran in his youth as a Confederate soldier. Across the top of the stamp is the wording "Final Reunion United Confederate Veterans." In the upper left corner is an hour glass representing time—most of which has run out as indicated. Across the face of the hour glass are the letters UCV.

Stamp collectors desiring first day cancellations may send a limited number of addressed envelopes, not in excess of 10, to the Postmaster at Norfolk, Va., with money order or remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be addressed "First Day Covers."

Thieves Take Old Gun

TRIPOLI, Tripolitania — (AP) — Scrap metal thieves, charged with stealing manhole covers off the streets and telephone wires off the line, stole a 400-year-old gun from a mosque in their latest exploit.

Authorities said the gun—later recovered—belonged to the first Turkish governor of Tripoli. The brass relic was stolen from the Murad Agha Mosque at Tagiura. Murad Agha was appointed governor of Tripoli in 1551 after seizing the town from the Knights of Malta.

Navy Mass-Producing First Operational Supersonic Plane; Twin-Jet Cutlass Reported To Fly as Fast as 1200 Miles Per Hour

The Cutlass in Flight — The "fe el of flying" is built in.

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

DALLAS, Tex.—(NEA)—Mass production is now under way on America's first operational, supersonic airplane, the Navy's F7U-3 Cutlass.

The first of a secret but "substantial" number of these strange-looking twin-jet fighter planes have begun coming off the line of the huge Chance Vought factory.

Reliable reports reveal that test models of the Cutlass have achieved sonic cruising speeds. This means that in normal flight they travel about 760 miles per hour. The same reports say that the Cutlass has flown at speeds from 900 to 1200 miles per hour in level flight under test conditions.

Officially, however, all that navy and plant officials will say is that the plane is in the "more than 600 miles an hour" class.

The only official announcement of any military plane flying faster than soud was on the air force's experimental XS-1. The Pentagon revealed that this tiny, experimental test plane broke the sonic barrier on Oct. 14, 1947, and after that made numerous flights "several hundred miles faster than the speed of sound."

Since then, although it is well known that intensive research and development has been carried on with many types of supersonic airplanes, the services have not admitted that any other plane has crossed the sonic barrier.

The big significance of the navy's decision to buy a large quantity of Cutlasses is that apparently they've licked enough of the complicated problem of supersonic flight to attempt routine operations at that speed. That means the day of commercial supersonic flight is not far distant.

Despite the plane's amazing speed, it will operate off the deck of carriers. Secret devices slow it down to a little more than 100 miles per hour for landing. It is 39 feet across, 40 feet long and has a gross weight of 20,000 pounds. This great weight will require the beefing-up of launching devices now used for jets on carriers.

Details of the plane's armament are secret, but it bristles with many heavy caliber guns. The newer models of the plane will be powered with two Westinghouse J-46 turbojet engines, each with more than 6000 pounds of thrust. After-burners for getting additional power from the exhaust gasses of the engine give it a large part of its exceptional speed.

To enable the pilot to maneuver the plane at its supersonic speeds, its controls have hydraulic boosts. This requires that an artificial "feel" of flying, which simulates the control force of conventional planes, be built back into the control system.

To stand the shock of supersonic flight, there is more magnesium in the frame of the Cutlass than has ever been used on any prevous aircraft. It has no conventional tail surface. Two rudders on the trailing edge of the swept-back wing control horizonta direction. "Ailavators," which are combined ailerons and elevators, give it lateral control. The wings fold up for more efficient storing aboard the carrier.

The pilot sits far up on the nose of the plane in a pressurized cockpit to protect him at high altitudes. The position gives him far more visibility than a pilot gets in most fighter planes.

More than 6000 persons are new employed at the Chance Vought plant here. This plant, plus the Consolidated Aircraft Co. plant in near-by Ft. Worth which is turning out B-36s, makes this area one of the busiest aircraft production center in the U. S.

In addition to Cutlasses, Chance Vought's Dallas plant is turning out a few of the famous Corsair fighters which are being used for close support of ground troops in Korea.

President Auriol Saw Key To Bastille At Mount Vernon

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON—President Auriol of France has now left the United States for Canada.

When he departed, there remained behind him, hanging on the walls of Mount Vernon, a symbol of France as dear to the French people as the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia is to the American people.

It is the key to the bastille.

President Auriol paid a visit to George Washington's home and saw the key to the bastille hanging on the wall just inside the door. But he did not put it there. It was given to Washington by Tom Paine, crusading pamphleteer of revolutionary days, to whom it had been given by General Lafayette.

One of the most historic symbols of France, the key was secured by Lafayette from the leaders of the French revolution who unlocked the bastille and released its political prisoners on July 14, 1789. Lafayette was one of the French aristocrats who had fought for the French people against the tyranny of Louis XIII, and the French revolutionaries gave him the key partly for his own protection.

Lafayette in turn passed it on to Tom Paine with these words: "The key goes to America. Give it to our general."

That was how one of the most famed tokens of French freedom happened to be hanging in Mount Vernon when President Auriol visited Washington's home last week.

Return Key to France

In this connection I should like to suggest that the cherished key to the bastille now be returned to France—as a symbol of everlasting friendship between our two countries.

The average American who visits Mount Vernon does not appreciate the key's significance, and the role it played in French history. But to France it means the day of liberty, the founding of the French republic. For, as the Liberty Bell tolled out the call to revolt in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, so the key to the bastille freed the oppressed of France on July 14, 1789.

That is why every July 14 since then is bastille day—the chief French national holiday.

Imprisoned in the bastille at that time were such French patriots as Voltaire, Lally-Tollendal, Cardinal de Rohan and the man in the iron mask. They had been imprisoned because they criticized the government or offended members of the nobility.

That is why bastille day and the key to the bastille mean so much to France, and why it would be such a significant gesture of friendship if we returned it at this time.

It could be enshrined in a monument not unlike the Statue of Liberty as a symbol of freedom.

Soviet Scandals

The American public may feel depressed over the scandals recently exposed in Washington. However, a Russian scandal, with all the earmarks of the Fulbright RFC investigation, has recently been reported by British intelligence.

The scandal took place in Bulgaria, about 37 miles from Sofia where Russia operates a uranium mine, the Goten mine.

The boss of the mine is a Russian engineer, Khrissimovich, whose salary is equal to $1,200 a month. He named his wife his assistant at $900 a month, and took over the most luxurious mansion in Sofia for their quarters.

Following his example, three other Russian engineers, Vetrenko, Dubrovsky and Stihma, pulled down cushy jobs for their wives at from $450 to $900 monthly. In comparison, Bulgarian miners are paid the equal of $54 a month.

To make life more pleasant in the satellite state, the Russians set up their own retail stores, stocked them with the finest foods in Bulgaria, and set the prices considerably lower than prices paid by Bulgarians.

All this was bitterly resented in Bulgaria and helped to increase current Bulgarian unrest.

Less inflation—the fight against inflation is a long way from being won, but the picture is now brighter than in the last three months. This is partly due to a tapering off of the consumer buying spree; also, the recent decision of the Federal Reserve board and the Treasury department to depress the price of long-term government bonds. Big banks and insurance companies are now holding on to their government bonds rather than selling them and showing a loss on their books. This means less credit inflation, though the bankers and insurance tycoons are far from happy about it.

Warning to India — Assistant Secretary of State McGhee warned Prime Minister Nehru of India on his recent trip to check the loyalty of certain top officers on the Indian general staff. McGhee made a special trip to Delhi to warn Nehru that Russia may try to overthrow his government by stirring up a phony revolution. He also gave Nehru a complete report on the plot to subvert the Pakistan army, said this should be a grim lesson to India. Nehru, however, resented, rather than welcomed the advice. As a result Indian-American relations are worse than ever.

Merry-Go-Round

Marriner Eccles, who has threatened to resign from the Federal Reserve board several times, now tells friends he has definitely made up his mind to leave the board on June 1. (A mistake—the government already is painfully short of good men.) . . . Al Hayes, president of the Machinist union, is talking to other labor chiefs about publishing a daily labor newspaper. Jointly sponsored by the AFL and CIO, it would present the trade-union viewpoint on national issues as the Wall Street Journal speaks for big business . . . One reason Gen. Lucius Clay was eased out as No. 2 man for mobilization was Clay's stubborn refusal to take advice from anyone. His own assistants were saying that "even Confucius couldn't advise Lucius." . . . The B-36 feud is smoldering again. This time, instead of the navy and air force bickering, it's the army and air force. Army generals believe the air force should spend its money on tactical planes to support ground troops, but the air force wants to build more B-36's for strategic bombing.

Useful Telephones

VIENNA —(AP)— The Viennese housewife can get a suggested dinner menu by telephone, with a complete recipe for each dish and just how much it will cost at today's prices. Vienna possibly has more dial services than any other city in the world. You can dial different numbers and get:

"Miss Ski"—who gives you recorded snow information; "Miss Bus girl"—who recites the departure times of buses.

"Miss Toto"—who gives you the results of the week-end soccer games. Then Vienna's thousands of musicians can tune their instruments to a perfect A-pitch by dialing A-O-69.

The telephone company also has an information service which will tell you the name of the last King of Siam, or where you can hire a baby-sitter.

Rations for India

NEW DELHI—(AP)—More than 45,000,000 people are under statutory rationing and nearly 80,000,000 others under informal rationing, representing 35 per cent of the Indian population, Food Minister K. M. Munshi said here.

Replying to questions in parliament, he added that in 1950 the commitments from government stocks against rationing amounted to 7,600,000 tons of food.

It's Possible to Rekindle Man's Interest in His Home

What can a wife do to encourage her husband's interest in their home when he shows almost none, a wife wants to know.

Well, there are a lot of things she can try—and perhaps one of them will work.

If they don't own their own home, she can make home-ownership her goal and try to get him interested in their "dream house." Many a husband shows little interest in a rented place, but suddenly develops an interest in his home, once he is living in a house and on land that belongs to him.

Then, too, instead of feeling discouraged because her husband doesn't show much interest in his home, the wife should take the leadership in making improvements and fixing up their house and yard. The quickest way to get another person interested in anything is to go ahead and start work on a project. Once it is under way it is often easy to draw the disinterested person into the project.

Make Homelife Bright

Also, a wife should make sure that she is creating the right kind of home atmosphere. If she strives to make their home a comfortable, inviting place where friends are always welcome and spontaneous entertaining is possible, it is far more likely that a husband will take pride in his home if his wife is a perfectionist housekeeper who never lets anyone relax. Or she may go to the other extreme and be such a sloppy housekeeper no one could take pride in the home she keeps.

It's a cinch that nagging won't do any good. No man was ever nagged into taking an interest in anything.

But a woman can lead a man into taking an interest in their home if she doesn't nag, or give in to discouragement and decide "What's the use of trying?"

If her interest is genuine it will probably be catching in time.

The Doctor Says—

Malaria Victim Should Be Treated as Soon as Possible

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

A worried young lady writes that for the past two weeks she has had a chill followed by fever every few days and wonders what it could be. She added that she recently returned from a trip to South America. Now there are a lot of possibilities, but one of the most likely is malaria—a disease which is one of the great scourges of mankind in many parts of the globe.

Malaria is an infection. It is carried by a particular kind of mosquito which picks up the disease by biting someone afflicted with it and then deposits it in the blood of the next person it bites. Without this mosquito, or if the mosquito is prevented from biting people, new cases of malaria will stop. It is this knowledge which has made possible the almost complete conquest of malaria in some parts of the world.

The mosquito can be attacked in a lot of ways. It breeds in stagnant water; this water can be drained off or covered with something like kerosene which prevents the mosquito from developing. Since the discovery of DDT and other insect poisons, these mosquitoes can be killed more successfully now than ever before.

If it is not possible to kill all the malaria carrying mosquitoes, they can often be prevented from biting. Screens or mosquito nets do this job, though one has to be sure that they are tight and you are snug inside by sundown when the insects start biting.

New Types

There are several kinds of malaria and during the last war our soldiers, sailors, and marines ran into some which were new to us and plenty tough ones. If the malaria mosquitoes couldn't be killed and couldn't be prevented from biting as happened in the Solomon Islands and elsewhere, the next best thing is treatment. For this purpose quinine and a chemically prepared drug, atabrine, proved about the most useful. Treatment, it is known should be begun as early as possible and removal to a good climate also helps.

In the case of the young lady the first problem is to find out promptly whether her chills and fever are actually caused by malaria. If they are she should get to work right away on treatment.

Dr. Jordan will answer questions from his readers in a special column once a week. Watch for it.

Altar League Urges Worship

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Family Altar League of America, founded by Rev. William A. Biederwolf in 1907 has its headquarters here. It is campaigning to encourage family worship. Daily worship for seven weeks after Easter to the Day of Pentecost will be practiced by its members throughout the world.

Norman V. Williams, the league's director, said unity of the family can be brought about by saying prayers and reading the Scriptures. About 30 denominations participate with the league in its celebration from Easter until Pentecost.

"We believe," said Williams, "that the family that worships together works together."

Whaling Fleet Enlarged

VANCOUVER — (AP) — Aquisition of two Norwegian killer boats by British Columbia Packers Ltd., marks an important expansion of the British Columbia whaling industry. The new move brings to five the number of killer boats in the fleet.

When the present group revived whaling here they took over an operation that had been written off as unprofitable in the minds of most businessmen. The firm managed to clear both financial and technical hurdles and ended the 1949 season with a catch of 250 whales. Last year the total increased to 312 whales.

KILLER'S PACE

BY JULIUS LONG

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Star Williams, criminal lawyer, obtains acquittal for Rose Bidault at her murder trial by showing the jury that her gun, which experts said wouldn't go off accidentally when dropped, would do so. After visiting a lady magician, he drops the gun in court and it goes off. I, Jim Marshall, his leg-man, am convinced there is something fishy about this business. I am now taking Rose home from her trial so that she can write a check for the balance of Star's fee.

• • •

VI

ROSE BIDAULT came out of her boudoir. She's put on a slinky kind of slacks and a halter. These were dark blue and there was a blend with her smoky black hair. She wore no makeup, save bright lipstick. Her eyes were dark and sultry.

I don't know what there was about Rose that got you. She had done all right. Quitting school when she was 16, she had married a railroad fireman, but he had died on an engine that went into an open switch at 70 miles an hour. Rose collected insurance and compensation and her next husband had been a real estate man named Hubert LeVeque, who had committed suicide two years later. There was no talk of foul play—Rose had been in Miami at the time. She married Barney Bidault a couple of weeks after the funeral.

"I showered and put off those awful clothes. They smelled of the jail," she said. We went to the portable bar and I mixed drinks with seltzer water which was about half flat.

"Well, Mrs. Bidault, I hope you have enough strength to write that check," I said.

"Don't call me Mrs. Bidault and don't worry about your check," she eyed me with lids half closed. "I want to tell you something, Marshall."

"You can call me Jim."

"All right, Jim. I want to tell you something. I never told a soul before. I don't think Larry's ever mentioned it, either."

She meant Larry Stone, a local playboy. District Attorney Andy Tanner had spent a lot of time trying to link Larry with Rose Bidault, but there hadn't been enough for him to go on.

She hesitated. "That's right, isn't it, about them not being able to try me again, no matter what happens?"

"That's right. Even if Andy Tanner should dig up six eye-witnesses, he couldn't use them against you now."

Rose sighed. "Well, I guess it doesn't make any difference if I tell the truth about Barney's murder now."

I straightened. I hadn't realized the drink had hit her that hard. She looked so cool and sober.

"Listen, Rose, I don't want to hear about it. The jury's returned a verdict of not guilty, so let's leave it that way!"

"But you don't understand. I didn't kill Barney."

• • •

SHE said it so simply and directly, looking me in the eyes and using a tone she might have used to say that she had just emptied her glass, which she had.

"All right, Rose, you didn't kill him. You say it, and the jury said it. So let's let it go at that!"

"I really didn't do it. I had nothing whatever to do with it—I didn't even drop the gun. It was Larry who told me to say that. It was Larry who fixed up the whole story. He even insisted that I shouldn't give any other story to Star Williams. That's why I never told Star."

She drew her legs up and cuddled in the big chair. She had finally claimed my undivided attention.

"It happened like this. Barney told me he was going to Cleveland on business. He said he was carrying a lot of bonds and wanted to borrow my little gun. I told him to take it and welcome. Actually, I never shot a gun in my life. I laughed at him in the first place when he bought it for me." She laughed now. "I never needed a gun to protect myself. I wasn't afraid to be alone with all the servants gone, and of course I got rid of them that night. It seemed like a swell time to have Larry over.

"Well, it turned out that Barney was wise to us. He borrowed my gun to kill us both when he caught us. But something went wrong with his plans. Somebody was with him when he barged in here. Whoever it was took the gun away from him and killed him with it."

She frowned at the incredulity in my eyes.

"That's what happened — don't look at me like that! We were both in there—" she pointed to the sunroom—"when we heard the shot. Larry came out and looked. He was scared, and so was I. At first I thought Barney had committed suicide. Then Larry convinced me it couldn't have been.

"I was to tell the police that Barney was going down to the office and was worried about leaving me alone with no servants around, so he had insisted that I get out my little gun and keep it handy. When he handed me the gun I let it slip to the floor. It went off and killed him." She bit her lip ruefully.

"A fine bill of goods the rat sold you. He knew the suicide story wouldn't hold. He was only looking out for himself."

• • •

THE sultry eyes shot me a resentful glance. "That's what's worrying me—I can't believe it was suicide. Somebody trailed Barney into the house and shot him! Whoever it was ran out of the room, downstairs and got away. Maybe the killer was waiting out there—knowing that Barney would come—anyway, he knew where to find my gun."

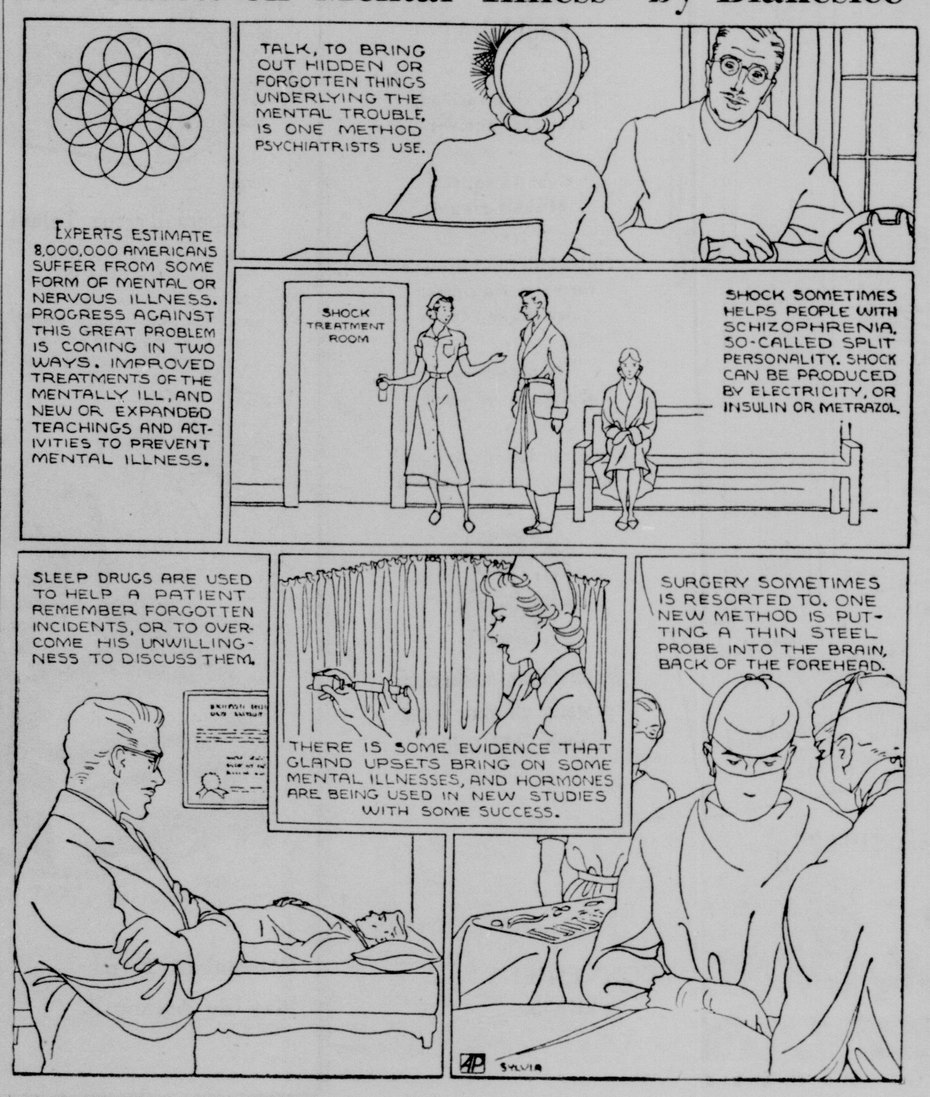

It was a great big chunk all of a sudden, and I couldn't swallow it.

"You don't believe me," she said. "What do you believe?"

"That Barney discovered you and Larry Stone and that either you or Stone shot him."

Cells Become Bedrooms

VANCOUVER —(AP)— The last prison bars in Vancouver's juvenil detention home are due for the scrap heap when workmen convert the last two cells to cozy, chintz-curtained bedrooms.

The change in appearance reflects the change in the attitude toward juvenile detention. Kiwanians in surburban Kerrisdale put 11 months of hard work and $1,500 into the project and found it paid off in scores of young lives filled again with hope.

Tourists For Ethiopia Sought

ADDIS ABABA —(AP)— Ethiopia has great tourist attractions, says Ralph S. Damon, president of Trans-World Airlines. On a visit here recently Damon said he intended to explore the possibilities of having American tourists visit the country.

The main reason for Damon's trip to Ethiopia, he said, is that TWA has a seven-year contract for supplying Ethiopian Airlines with managerial, technical and flying personnel.

Delhi Curtails Rickshaws

NEW DELHI—(AP)—Health Minister Shrimati Amrit Kaur told a questioner in parliament that hand-drawn rickshaws are slated for extinction in Delhi by the end of 1952.

She said the Delhi municipal parliament had mapped a program for the gradual elimination of the 150 licensed for the current year. A survey in April, 1947, showed 500 rickshaws plying the streets then.

Hog Feed With A.P.F.

What is A.P.F?

A.P.F. or "animal protein factor" has crept into use recently as a general designation for Vitamin B12 and several unidentified factors of Vitamin B. Vitamin B12 has been found to be the most potent therapeutic substance known on a weight for weight basis for stimulating growth and health in non-ruminous animals such as hogs and chickens

This A.P.F. is obtained from antibiotic residue and is assayed to contain at least 6 mgs. of Vitamin B12 per pound.

It is suggested that from 5 to 10 pounds of this be mixed with a ton of feed for hogs. This yields from 30 to 60 mgs. per ton of Vitamin B12.

58c POUND

What is A.P.F. with Antibiotic?

An antibiotic has been defined as an organic chemical substance produced by a supposedly harmless micro-organism or other living system and which has the ability of inhibiting the growth of other disease producing micro-organisms. The most important property of antibiotics is their selective action upon bacteria and other forms of life without affecting the host cells. For instance, penicillin, streptomycin, Chloromycetin, aureomycin, bactracin, terryamycin, subtlin and many others.

It is thought that antibiotics in conjunction with A.P.F. stimulates growth and promotes health in non-ruminous animals such as hogs and chickens. Work has been done by several Universities and so far we have lots of theories.

This A.P.F. with antibotics (Bacitracin) contains Vitamin B12 3 mgs. and bacitracin 3 gms. per pound and sells at 89c per pound

Auto Gadget Gives the Motorists a Report Card

By Richard Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—They've developed a machine that makes the back-seat driver as oldfashioned as a Model T. This baby not only tells you what you're doing wrong at the wheel, but gives you a report card at the end of the drive.

It's the Roadometer, an educational driver-tester developed by an insurance company. (Aetna Casualty and Surety Co.) The machine is a very handsome and efficient gadget, but it doesn't have a kind bolt in its body.

In fact, you can almost hear it chortle as it takes you for a harrowing two-minute ride, via colored movies.

You sit on a regular automobile seat, with the steering wheel, horn, directional signals, accelerator pedal and brake pedal all in proper position. In front of you is the hood and a movie screen. Behind you is a nightmarish collection of nuts, bolts, screws wires, movie projectors, slide projectors, electrical relays and astorted mechanical stuff.

* * *

A message flashes on the screen, telling you to drive normally and use all the equipment just as you would in your own car. You push a button marked "start" and you're off.

The movie shows you the scene, as you drive down an innocent-looking suburban street. Before the next two minutes have elapsed, you're a nervous wreck, you've been in a couple of smash-ups, hit somebody and the Roadometer presents you with a score card showing just how lousy a driver you are.,

Unless, of couse, you happen to be a good driver. Then everything goes well, you don't hit anybody, your car is still intact, the Roadometer tells you you're good, and your insurance company loves you dearly.

As you drive down the movie street, it turns into a taxi-driver's paradise. First a bum in a pick-up truck cuts you off. Then you have to steer around some construction work. Then a big box falls off that no-good pick-up truck, right where you can't miss it. Then you have to steer around a sharp S-curve.

* * *

You've only begun. Next on the sinister schedule, some jerk darts out from behind a parked car right in your path. You make a hair-pin right turn. And you take a curve, just as one fool coming at you passes another fool, both going at high speed.

All the time, as you accelerate, brake, blow your horn, use your signals and steer, the Roadometer behind you is clicking and banging. The clicks and bangs are evidencies of an ingenious mechanical brain, which keeps track of how you're doing.

If you don't brake fast enough, the machine knows. It knows if you steer too near the center or the curb, if you forget your directional signals, if you don't slow down when the no-good truck cuts you off. It knows everything except your name and address, fortunately.

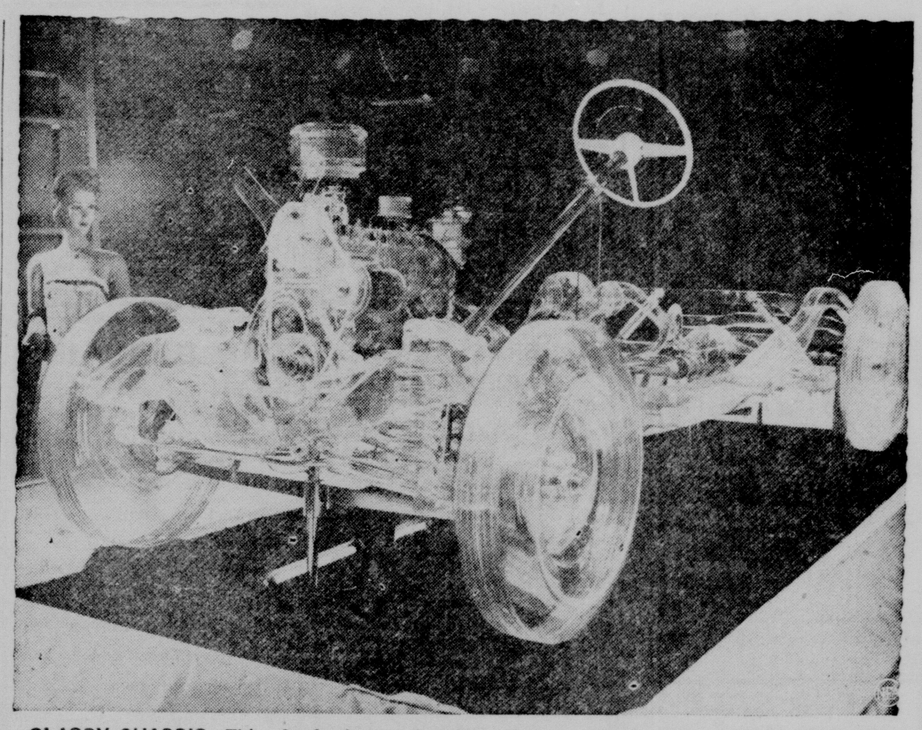

* * *

The Roadometer is the climax of 14-years' research to improve driver-testing devices. This one is almost perfect. The harder you step on the accelerator, the faster the film unwinds and you get the illusion of speed. If you don't turn quickly enough, the film doesn't either and you think you're going to wind up off the road.

Every time you do something the Roadometer thinks causes an accident, the film shuts off and a slide comes on. The slide shows you just what kind of an accident you caused, and tells you why.

At the end of the ride, the Roadometer gives you a printed score-card. For each of nine separate items, it scores a maximum of 20 points. The lower your score, the better. The machine even totals the points.

The Roadometer, which made its public debut at the exposition of the Greater New York Safety Council, took two years to develop. It will be exhibited around the country at state fairs and other places.

GLASSY CHASSIS—This, clearly, is an automobile. It was designed so you can look right inside and find out how your new auto perks. The transparent chassis makes full use of plastics, glossy fluorescent lacquer and ultra-violet ray lamps to show complete engine and chassis operation. Plymouth engineers in Detroit spent 18 months building the display.

Canada Preserves Census Record

OTTAWA—(AP)—When Canada launches the 1951 census in June she will be striving to maintain a leadership in census-taking captured almost 300 years ago. Then, in 1666 an obscure little French colony hacking her way out of the wilderness, she lay claim to the title of the first country to take a name-by-name census in modern times.
